20-Mile Area Shaken, Resulting in Quake Reports

INQUIRY BEGUN

Officials Refuse to Comment on Possibility Of Sabotage

Gibbstown, N. J.—Two men were killed today and a third was injured in a nitrocellulose explosion that wrecked a unit of the DuPont company powder works and shook an area of 20 miles.

A company announcement listed the dead as Earl Leslie Harbison, 30, Clayton, N. J., and Edward M. Bundens, Jr., 31, Paulsboro, N. J.

Although 500 yards away from the blast-torn unit of the Repauno plant of the company here, Raymond Hicks, Gibbstown, was injured by the explosion.

Paul C. Kaiser, general manager of the works, said the extent of Hicks' injuries had not been determined.

Company officials began an investigation to determine the cause. New Jersey state police and the federal bureau of investigation started inquiries—but withheld comment on any possibility of sabotage.

Residents of a half dozen-southwestern New Jersey towns and of parts of Philadelphia, 12 miles north, crowded sidewalks for half an hour after the mid-morning shock—fearing an earthquake.

Children quit schools. Eugene Horan, president of the Red Cross chapter at nearby Woodbury, said he learned children were marched from the Gibbstown school by teachers who thought the shock might have weakened the roof. Pupils were sent home.

Coffee was spilled in restaurants. Windows in nearby homes and factory districts along the Delaware river were shattered. Monitors at a Philadelphia funeral fled from a church, thinking the great Frankford arsenal might have exploded.

Most distant report of the shock came from Lakehurst—65 miles away.

A company official said the dead men were in or near the small unit at the center of the detonation. It was part of what employees term the "N. G. line"—a scattered row of flimsily-constructed buildings where nitrocellulose is mixed.

Previous Explosions
At least twenty persons have been killed in other explosions here. The most serious explosion damaged the plant in January, May and October of 1916—killing 18 lives.

At Wilmington, Del., the DuPont company issued this statement: "An explosion about 10:30 o'clock this morning wrecked one of the units used in the manufacture of nitrocellulose at the Repauno plant of the DuPont company at Gibbstown, N. J.

"About 6,000 pounds of nitro glycerine exploded, it is estimated. "A check is now being made to find out if there were any fatalities. Two workmen, it is believed, were in the house when the explosion took place."

Workers in factory across the Delaware river, the Pennsylvania side said they could see a cloud of smoke rising from the vicinity of the powder works.

Thousands of telephone calls showed the shock of the blast was felt in Philadelphia and for 15 or 20 miles around the plant.

Sizes of Youths Lead To Reformatory Terms

Milwaukee—(U)—Two youths, "the long and the short of it," were sentenced in municipal court today to serve one to three years each in Green Bay reformatory for assault and robbery and larceny of a taxi. Raymond E. Snow, 24, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall, and Fred A. Lingeman, 20, who is only 5 feet 4, were arrested quickly, because of their size, after a taxi driver was held up last Friday.

KHAKI GOES SOCIETY

Khaki has become the popular color for dinner gowns and after sundown wearing appeared in London's smart set. Of course, it is a patriotic gesture, since England's soldiers are uniformed in that particular shade of brown. Perhaps the United States Government has the feminine population in mind when they are contemplating a change from the familiar khaki to a lovely, soft blue.

LONG SINGS ON ELECTION DAY

Governor Earl K. Long (left), seeking to retain his office as governor of Louisiana, donned a cowboy hat and sang songs over the radio on election day in New Orleans. Long, attempting to maintain in power the indignant-riddled political organization started by Huey Long in 1938, was opposed by four "reform" candidates. Returns today indicated Long must face a run-off Democratic primary. His opponent will be Sam H. Jones, "reform" candidate.

Governor Earl Long Facing Run-Off Primary on Feb. 20 With Jones, Reform Candidate

New Orleans—(U)—Ballot tabulations today showed Governor Earl K. Long, chief of the powerful Louisiana political machine his brother built, must face a self-styled "reform" candidate in a run-off Democratic primary in his effort to win reelection.

Continuance of personnel and policies of the regime established by the late Senator Huey P. Long, was an issue in the first primary yesterday.

It appeared certain that Long would fail to attain a majority over the field by somewhere between 20,000 and 30,000 votes, judging from incomplete and unofficial returns available before noon today, and that he must face Sam H. Jones, "reform" candidate and attorney in a Feb. 20 run-off.

Jones, who ran slightly more than 26,000 votes behind Long in New Orleans, Long's machine-controlled stronghold, was holding even with the governor in the slow returns from country parishes, and it appeared he might not finish much more than 30,000 to 35,000 votes behind the governor.

Slow State Returns
Returns from 675 of the state's 1,700 precincts, including New Orleans almost complete, gave Long 100,724 votes against 64,312 for Jones and 49,026 for James A. Noe, James H. Morrison had 13,550 and Vincent Moseley 3,022.

The New Orleans vote, expected to favor Long because of the organization headed by Mayor Robert S. Maestri, was tabulated quickly but country precincts counted votes for local officials before the state ticket and returns came in slowly.

Many disturbances marked balloting in New Orleans and numerous charges were made of vote fraud but the election, on the whole, was quiet.

Candidate Noe was involved in several of the New Orleans fights when he, with photographers, attempted to take pictures of what he termed were election irregularities. He was reported to have knocked one man down when he was attacked. More than a score of arrests were made.

Predicts Florida's Delegates Will Back Roosevelt for Race
Washington—(U)—A prediction that the Florida delegation to the Democratic national convention would back President Roosevelt for a third term came today from Senator Pepper (D-Fla.).

His statement, made soon after an announcement that Ohio delegates would be in the Roosevelt camp if their "favorite son," Senator Donahy, failed to develop strength, kept the capital talking about the draft-Roosevelt movement.

Pepper said he believed Florida Democrats would elect 14 delegates who were friendly to the president and would support him or any man of his choice, although they would go to the convention without official instructions.

At Columbus, Ohio, Arthur Limbach, state Democratic chairman, said yesterday that Ohio's 52 convention votes would be pledged to Donahy as the state's "favorite son" but would be cast immediately for Mr. Roosevelt if there was a first ballot swing to him.

Friends of Donahy said the Ohio senator had given them to understand that, while he had made no public announcement he regarded Mr. Roosevelt as the logical choice of the convention.

Two Sent to Prison On Game Law Charges

Ashland—(U)—Circuit Judge G. N. Risjord imposed prison sentences of one to three years each on Percy Day, Jefferson, and Paul Schroeder, Weyauwega, yesterday for transporting and possessing venison during the closed deer season.

Both defendants had records of previous convictions for game law violations. They were arrested at Oshkosh Oct. 18 after eluding Ashland county game wardens in an all-night chase. Parts of four deer were found in their car.

Judge Risjord ordered the automobile confiscated.

Officials May Appeal Court Tax Decision

Refusal of Rehearing Would Clear Way for Plea to U. S. Tribunal

Ruling Cited to Show 'Business Is Getting Fair Deal' in State

Madison—(U)—Deputy Attorney General J. Ward Rector and Elmer Barlow, executive office legal counsel, announced today they were studying the supreme court's dividends tax decision to determine whether it should be appealed.

First step in an appeal action, they said, would be a request for rehearing before the state court. Should that be denied, the case then might be taken to the United States Supreme court.

Both expressed belief the decision would not induce removal of Wisconsin corporations to other states.

"The advantages of incorporation outside the state are somewhat of a myth," Rector declared.

He and Barlow pointed out that foreign corporations were required to purchase agency licenses and post bonds to do business in Wisconsin, the cost of which would offset in part at least savings in dividend taxes achieved by shifting headquarters.

"For the amount of taxes paid, it would not be worth while for a big corporation to move," Barlow said.

He added the decision was an example of fair treatment accorded to industry in this state. Even though the supreme court indicated it would have liked to keep the tax on foreign corporation dividends to help straighten out the state's financial difficulties, the ruling was made on a strictly legal basis, Barlow said.

"Business is getting a fair deal in Wisconsin," Barlow asserted.

20 Per Cent Cut
The decision that foreign corporations operating in Wisconsin could not be taxed on dividends paid to their stockholders eliminated at least 20 per cent of the financial proceeds of a law that has been used for budget balancing purposes since 1935.

The decision threatened to put an end to the four-year-old dividend tax experiment, depending upon the complexion of the new legislature.

Browder Motion Denied by Court

Communist Leader Fails To Win Modification Of Indictment

New York—(U)—Counsel for Earl Browder moved unsuccessfully for a modification of the indictment against him today as the Communist leader's trial on passport fraud charges opened in federal court.

George Gordon Battle, Browder's attorney, argued that two of the three names under which Browder was accused of having obtained passports were superfluous, inasmuch as he was asked only the "last" name he had used when he applied for a fourth passport in 1937.

In the indictment, he is charged with having masqueraded as Nicholas Dozenberg, George Morris and Albert Richards.

Judge Alfred C. Cox denied Battle's motion to throw out the last two names.

Before impaneling a jury, Judge Coxe read a long list of questions to be asked of the prospective jurors, a list which he remarked at one point, "begins to read like a statute of the United States."

Among the questions was one submitted by the prosecution, asking whether the veniremen were considered to be "Trotskyites, Trotskyites or—where the judge frowned and said:

"There is another name here which I am quite unable to pronounce."

Alleged Plotters are Accused of Trying to Sabotage War Supplies

New York—(U)—Sabotage of United States war supplies, rather than a primary attempt to set up a Hitler-like dictatorship, was ascribed today as the real motive of 17 men arrested Saturday by the F.B.I. on charges of seditious conspiracy.

Federal authorities said the men—in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail each—apparently were being trained to wreck American supplies and munitions, if and when this country became involved in war.

The men, who pleaded innocent when arraigned Monday, were charged with conspiring to overthrow the government, authorities said, in order to give the government jurisdiction.

It was a technical charge similar to the income tax evasion charges lodged against some gangsters so that prosecution might be brought in federal court.

Woodring Reports on Recruiting Campaign

Washington—(U)—Secretary Woodring reported today that more than $2,000 men had joined the regular army since July 1 in a recruiting campaign which he termed "an amazing success." The total set a new peace-time record.

Italians Told to Be Ready to Fight 'At Any Moment'

Fascist Party Secretary Publishes Warning After Conference

Rome—(U)—Ettore Muti, secretary of the fascist party, warned Italians today that they might be compelled "at any moment" to fight in the European war.

His warning was published after a conference with party leaders from 26 provinces.

The communique advised the Italian people not to be too greatly impressed by "the recent demonstrations of international sympathy." (Evidently a reference to the friendly attitude displayed toward Italy by France and Great Britain since their war with Germany began.)

"There is no need to lull oneself with the illusion that Italy's present situation with regard to war may last forever," Muti declared.

"Fascist Italy may face the necessity and duty at any moment of picking up arms."

Urges Preparedness
"It must therefore be prepared in its resources and above all in its spirit. It is well to add that it is absurd and dangerous to derive too much satisfaction from too recent demonstrations of international sympathy which are without justification or foundation and not even in harmony with the true sentiment of the Italian people, which have learned not to forget the history especially in these recent times."

Muti's announcement said that relaxation of fascism's "anti-democratic, anti-bolshevik and anti-bourgeois policies would be pernicious, particularly at the present time."

Muti instructed his assistants to keep themselves fully informed of the state of public opinion in their districts both with regard to international and domestic events.

He told them they were to explain to the public whenever necessary the reasons for such measures as food rationing and requisitioning of materials.

This was necessary, he said, to prevent "incomprehension or useless worries."

Cudahy Assumes Post at Brussels

Acts Quickly as Result of Tension in Lowland Countries

Brussels—(U)—The new United States ambassador to Belgium, John Cudahy, assumed his post with unprecedented speed today amidst tension accompanying recent preparations by Belgium and the Netherlands for defense against invasion.

Cudahy, a native of Milwaukee, Wis., and former minister to Ireland, ordered over the weekend to hurry here as years spread of an invasion from Germany, arrived at 10 a. m. today, was received by Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak and by noon had presented his credentials to King Leopold at the palace.

The mobilization steps which Belgium took over the weekend, called technicians to the colors—a stage next to complete mobilization—were to be maintained "for some time." General Henri Denis, defense minister, said today.

"Our information and general impressions made it necessary," he said. "We must always be alert."

The cold has affected defense plans somewhat, he said, because invading troops could cross on the ice, although boats have been busy keeping defensive waterways free.

All necessary trench digging was completed before the freeze, which improved the trenches, General Denis said.

British Railway Workers are Ordered to be Alert to Stop Sabotage Acts Against Lines

London—(U)—Great Britain's 600,000 railway workers were reported ordered on the alert today for acts of sabotage against the nation's lines.

The vast "detective" system was understood to have been set up as the Daily Mail and Daily Herald reported that a plot by the German intelligence service to cripple the nation's railway network had been discovered.

The Daily Mail said the plot was aimed at public works and bridges. No arrests have been announced. The newspaper declared the conspiracy had been discovered only a few days ago, and that "counter measures" were expected to be put into effect shortly.

Meanwhile, the government was believed to be taking steps to find

Finns Reported to Be Driving Russians Back in Salla Sector

Helsinki—(U)—Finnish troops, fighting in sub-zero weather, were reported driving the Russians back in the Salla region and advancing toward a new victory today.

Today's army communique laconically confined itself to the assertion that "four troops are fighting successfully in the direction of Salla," Finland's eastern border just above the Arctic circle.

However, other Finnish sources said developments in the Salla sector raised hopes of further successes.

The Finns reported they had routed a Russian company north of Lake Ladoga, killing 70 men and capturing two tanks.

The Finnish air force, the army announced, carried out "several" bombing raids on enemy columns and "concentration sites." One Russian plane was reported shot down.

Bitter Weather to Stay for Several Days, Is Forecast

Cold Wave Moves Into Midwest From Canada; 9 Below Here

The thermometer sank below the zero mark in Appleton again today and residents of this vicinity heard from the weatherman that they can batten up their minds to a siege of bitter weather.

"Colder tonight," continued cold for several days," was the forecast for the state issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

Snow crunched under shoes, carmoaned as they were started after a cold night, and furnaces were stoked mightily this morning as Appleton citizens looked out again on a clear day with a thermometer under the zero line. The minimum was nine below zero, at 7 o'clock this morning, the Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported.

Yesterday's highest reading was three above, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, according to power company charts. Weather records disclosed that a year ago today, the coldest mark was 15 above. There was no cold spell comparable to this one last January.

City and county snow crews, who up to last Sunday had little to do, continued their work on street and highways today and traffic conditions improved. Little of the snow that fell during Sunday's blizzard has melted because of the cold wave that followed.

Zimmerman's Order Blocks Disbursements Of Liquor Receipts

Madison—(U)—An order from Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman, blocking disbursement to localities of $2,172,156 in liquor tax receipts, was on file at the state auditor's office today.

Zimmerman ordered indefinite delay in distribution of the funds, scheduled for this week under an apportionment made by Treasurer John M. Smith.

The secretary of state explained he would not audit vouchers until he was assured the state treasury had sufficient funds to pay highway privilege tax claims due on Feb. 1 and March 1. He said the highway tax obligations must be considered a favored prior claim.

Under an agreement between Governor Heil and officials of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities, the state paid $183,000 or 50 per cent of the amount owing on the highway tax claims last Dec. 15. The remaining 50 per cent under the agreement must be paid in the February and March installments.

Wants to Know How Neutrality Would Be Affected

DISCUSS CREDIT

Leaders Doubt Congress Will Vote for Further Assistance

Washington—(U)—Congressional leaders said today there was grave doubt that the legislature would vote further financial aid for besieged Finland.

They reported that a good many members feared additional assistance to the little Baltic republic might involve the United States ultimately in Europe's wars, despite President Roosevelt's contention that the extension of credit at this time would neither constitute nor threaten such involvement.

Mr. Roosevelt put the question up to congress yesterday, with the observation that the "most reasonable" approach seemed to be an increase in the Export-Import bank's revolving credit fund to enable it to finance exports of American farm surpluses and manufactured products, not including implements of war.

The senate banking committee decided today to ask Secretary Hull how American neutrality policies would be affected by extending financial assistance to Finland.

Action Delayed
Pending his appearance at a closed session next Wednesday, action on all proposals—among them the plan suggested by the president—was deferred.

(In New York today former President Hoover declared Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion for credit extension "should be supported.")

Credit angles of possible financial assistance were canvassed by the committee today with Jesse H. Jones, the federal loan administrator.

Jones was quoted later as saying that a $10,000,000 loan already granted Finland was "a sound credit risk." It was reported, however, that Jones did not specify how much additional money might properly be advanced.

Meanwhile, Senator Brown (D-Mich.), author of a proposal to make an unrestricted $50,000,000 loan to Finland, said he would redraft the measure to bring it more into line with the views of the administration.

Conservate Food Supplies
Banking committee members said the group had received a report that Hoover, heading an American drive for private aid to Finland, did not believe the Finns would be in much need of an American loan for foodstuffs before April.

Hoover was quoted as saying that the Finns had concentrated available supplies of food when the war broke out and had conserved these carefully.

Jones reported that the Export-Import bank now is disbursing $500,000 of the $10,000,000 loan already granted the Finns and that an additional $2,500,000 of Finnish non-military purchases in the United States has been approved.

It was said Jones had advised the Finns that an unrestricted loan for military purposes would violate the spirit of the country's neutrality act.

On the house side of the capitol, it appeared that the Dies committee, which passed out of existence Jan. 3, would be recreated next week.

Speaker Bankhead said the house rules committee would meet Monday and he assumed it would approve a proposal to give the committee another year of life. The house was expected to give its approval a few days afterward.

Mae Murray Will Not Drop Court Fight for Custody of Her Son

New York—(U)—Mae Murray, blonde star of the old silent films, served notice through her attorney today that she would not give up her court fight to regain custody of her 13-year-old son, Kieran.

Her lawyer, Vincent A. Catoggio, Jr., said he expected Miss Murray would have the child "within a month."

Supreme Court Justice Francis Berman yesterday in Albany denied Miss Murray's appeal for custody on a writ of habeas corpus, ruling that Kieran, whose father was David Murray, must remain with Miss Bessie Cunningham in Averill Park, near Troy, N. Y.

Catoggio said Justice Berman's only objection to Kieran returned to Miss Murray was based on lack of evidence that she was financially able to support him and provide a suitable home.

"I am motioning picture contract Miss Murray is reported to have made in Hollywood which calls for the production of three pictures a year for two years," Catoggio said. "The reported compensation to her is $175,000."

Heil Forces are Jubilant After Relief Decision

See Chance of Ending Term Without Financial Embarrassments

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—There were smiles in the executive office at the capitol today, real, honest to goodness smiles, confident smiles, a gladness that after months of weary struggle with the epic problem of state finances, the Heil administration at last sees a solid chance to end its term without further serious embarrassments over budget problems.

Although Governor Heil was not yet fully acquainted with the important developments during his absence on a southern vacation, his confidential advisors today hailed the supreme court's decision upholding the governor's veto of $2,500,000 from legislative pension appropriation acts, and pointed to other factors which make the state's financial picture brighter today than it has been for months.

All of them exhibited a desire to "play down" the significance of another important supreme court verdict yesterday, a decision invalidating the state privilege dividend tax as it applies to foreign corporations.

Orders Refund
The court decided that the state has no power to tax the earnings of outside corporations on their Wisconsin business, and consequently ordered the treasury to refund to those corporations which have been paying the tax since 1935 the amount of their payments.

Tax commission estimates today placed the amount of such refunds at $1,267,000.

Although independent observers recognized that such repayment would make a serious dent in the state treasury, Charles McKewen, Governor Heil's financial advisor, said that the state's immediate prospect of repayment. It will require at least a year before the formalities of application and repayment are completed, and by that time the new legislature will be on hand to replenish the treasury if it is emptied as a result.

More interesting was the reaction of men who represent Governor Heil's own point of view—the members of his secretariat—on the tax decision.

McKewen said bluntly that "it is the end of an aggravating tax." Another one of Heil's associates observed that the decision "will put Wisconsin among the white states again."

Explain Action
Both remarked that the Heil administration never actually endorsed the privilege dividend tax, enacted in 1935 under former Governor LaFollette, but that it was renewed and increased in the last legislature with the support of Heil because of what seemed at that time an imperative demand for more state revenue.

Heil's advisors intimated that the announcement of the invalidation of the tax would encourage outside business interests which have been distrustful of Wisconsin because of its tax policies.

The court's decision on the pension appropriations yesterday has the effect of clearing the air in the capitol and in the 71 Wisconsin counties on administration of pension aids, and the new provision applying the civil service system to county welfare workers. During the litigation over the appropriations, there was considerable confusion, both in state offices and in the localities, on the prospects for pension funds this year.

The opinion also removed one possible legal attack on the $5,000,000 relief appropriation, but it was promptly pointed out in the capitol today that another attack on that measure's constitutionality may well appear.

Hasn't Touched Fund
The administration has not yet touched the relief fund, using receipts of previously enacted LaFollette relief taxes for current relief allocations. Because Governor Heil's contested partial veto also involved the relief fund.

Although the emergency board is now technically free to order disbursements from the fund, there is abundant gossip in the capitol that a further question of constitutionality of the act may be made because the legislature delegated full power to spend the $5,000,000 to the 3-member emergency board. In some sources it is felt that such delegation will be declared unlawful if it is tested in the court. By simply refusing to audit the orders for allocations from the fund, it was pointed out, Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman could bring the question to the court again.

Although Zimmerman was out of town today, Heil advisors were not overly confident that he will approve expenditures under the act. They pointed out that he has twice before held up the administration's plans by taking cases to the supreme court, although he was defeated in that court on both occasions.

Another Adjournment Asked in Rate Case

Madison—(P)—Maynard Burglund, Superior city attorney, asked the public service commission yesterday to adjourn the Superior Water, Light and Power company rate proceedings for 60 or 90 days.

His motion came at the close of another day of inquiry into the city's eight year old request to reduce water, light and gas rates. It may be argued today.

Judge Duffy Will be Introduced to Lawyers

Federal District Judge F. Ryan Duffy will be introduced to lawyers of the eastern district at an informal meeting and smoker at the Milwaukee Elks club at 8 o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 22. The Milwaukee Bar association is in charge of the meeting. Several members of the Outagamie County Bar association are expected to attend.

Art Collectors Buy Small Possessions Of John Ringling

New York—(P)—Little possessions of the late circus king, John Ringling, brought modest prices at an auction yesterday.

In an odd miscellany of objects from five estates, the first lots of furnishings from his Park avenue apartment home went on sale at the Coleman gallery.

Later this week, the circus operator's gilded carved wood bed, with cupids on the posts; a pair of great chandeliers, with rock crystal pendants carved in the shape of fruits, and other valuable pieces will go on sale.

Bundles of draperies, odds and ends of china and bric-a-brac sold for $2 and $3 at the start of the auction. Several small oil paintings brought $3 to $22.

Major art objects owned by the Ringling estate had been bequeathed to the state of Florida—a collection valued at $13,000,000 being exhibited at the John and Mabel Ringling memorial art museum in Sarasota.

Publisher Enters New York State's Delegate Battle

Frank Gannett Announces He'll Seek Nomination as President

Rochester, N. Y.—(P)—A battle for New York's powerful bloc of 92 votes towards the Republican presidential nomination is assured with the candidacy of publisher Frank Gannett.

Several weeks after Manhattan's district attorney Thomas E. Dewey entered the race, the upstate Republican leader, former chairman of the committee to uphold constitutional government, announced he would run, at a civic testimonial dinner last night.

"My answer is yes," Gannett replied to several speakers who urged him to run. "I realize what it means to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for president."

Yet it is a call to duty that no citizen can ignore.

The publisher's candidacy is backed by a bloc of upstate "grass roots" Republicans headed by Thomas E. Broderick, a member of the state executive committee. An avowed opponent of the New Deal, he continued his attack in his address last night.

"The only way to stop them (New Dealers) is to get rid of them," "Too," he said, "there is little freedom in the world, political or religious, until our constitution was adopted."

"If the New Deal had gone unbridled, down the road President Roosevelt started us on three years ago, we should have nothing left today but the empty form of constitutional democracy."

Gannett announced through the mail today his resignation as the constitutional government committee chairman in favor of former congressman Samuel B. Pettigill of Indiana.

New York—(P)—Frank E. Gannett, who announced last night his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president, has resigned as a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press. The resignation is effective at once in conformity with the by-laws.

Mr. Gannett became a director in 1935 and was reelected in 1938 for a three-year term.

Snow, Cold Weather Increases Cafeteria Trade at High School

The heavy snow storm over the weekend zoomed business at the Appleton High school cafeteria to more than double its usual volume, according to M. B. Gentry, chef.

A total of 432 high school pupils ate their lunches in the cafeteria Tuesday, the first day of school after the storm. The lunch counters were jammed with students waiting in line until 12:30 to get food.

The cold weather Tuesday as well as the difficulty of travel both afoot and in cars was responsible for the increase, Gentry said.

ful of small bills" shortly before Christmas, 1938, to a Negro who had testified against an employer charged with violating the Wagner act.

The Smith committee investigating the board put into the record a letter from C. W. Whittemore, the examiner, to Washington headquarters, telling how he and an associate had given the money to Sam Bailey while they were at work on a case involving the Alma Mills at Gaffney, S. C.

Whittemore, called to the witness stand, was not asked immediately why he gave the money, but he did say that he saw nothing wrong with making the gift.

The foreign relations group had a regular meeting scheduled today for consideration of its routine calendar. There was a possibility, however, that Senator Gillette (D-Iowa) might bring up his resolution to apply neutrality act restrictions to the Sino-Japanese war.

Gillette proposed his resolution yesterday after Senator Danaher (R-Conn.) had offered one to have congress apply the act to the Russo-Finnish conflict. Under the law, congress as well as the president may declare a state of war exists abroad which necessitates application of the shipping and financial restrictions of the act.

Asked at his press conference yesterday why the act had not been put into operation in connection with the invasion of Finland, the president said thus far that was an undeclared war.

MEMBERS OF THE ALLEGED TERRORIST GANG ARRAIGNED IN NEW YORK

Wallace Urges Forestry Policy

Secretary of Agriculture Protests Depletion of Soil Resources

Washington—(P)—Secretary Wallace urged today the adoption of a "constructive" national forestry policy embodying government regulation of timber cutting practices on privately-owned land and the extension of public ownership and management of forests.

He told a joint congressional committee on forestry that, despite present conservation efforts, the United States was still depleting its "capital stock or usable forests—just as we are still depleting our capital stock of soil resources."

The essential elements of a national forestry program, the secretary of agriculture said, are co-operation between governmental agencies and owners of private forest lands and increased purchases of land by the government.

"It is my considered opinion," he said, "that to obtain this major objective, public regulation of cutting practices on privately-owned land is essential. This regulation might well be a joint state-federal undertaking, with the federal government retaining the right of direct action if such became essential."

"If properly planned and administered, I believe such regulation will protect private as well as public interests and values, and should afford effective assurance that private owners and private industries will respond effectively to public cooperation and aid."

Milk Pool Issues New Publication

Harry Jack, President, Is Editor of Monthly Journal

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A new newspaper organ for the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, with Harry Jack, pool president, as editor has been established, it was disclosed here today.

The paper is edited from the pool's new headquarters at Green Bay, while the publication office is in Mayville, Dodge county. The first issue of the publication, the weekly "The Pool," was published last week.

Along with the editorial board are H. F. Dries of Green Bay and F. W. Frieb of Neshkoro. The newspaper will be published monthly.

The pool's organ was formerly the Wisconsin Dairyman's News, edited by Paul Weiss and published at Madison. Some months ago the business relationship of Weiss and the pool were ended, reportedly due to differences over policy. The new pool sheet is called the "Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool News."

Defends Oleo Tax
The first and current issue of the paper contains an article by former State Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark defending the state's oleo tax law, which Cashman sponsored in the legislature 5 years ago.

The oleo tax law, Cashman asserts in answer to recent critics of the statute, is not a trade barrier, but is "founded upon the eternal principle of self-preservation and the love and duty the people owe to their children and the future welfare of the state and nation."

Most of the editorial space in the newspaper is devoted to explanations and encouragement of the cooperative movement, and appeals to dairy farmers to support the pool organization.

One-Man Grand Jury Quiz Is Postponed

Bessemer, Mich.—(P)—A one-man grand jury investigation of Marengo township affairs, scheduled to open here today, has been postponed to Jan. 20 by Judge P. C. Gilbert of Traverse City who was assigned to conduct the inquiry.

The postponement was ordered to permit hearing of a motion filed on behalf of Supervisor Ben Goldman to quash and dismiss the inquiry, and another motion seeking to strike out Goldman's motion.

The latter motion was filed by Attorney General Thomas Read.

More Than Japanese Cabinet Shake-Up Needed to Improve U. S. Relations With Tokio

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—Creation of a new and liberal Japanese cabinet under the premiership of the able and affable Admiral Yonai is generally interpreted as a gesture of appeasement toward the United States, and in that sense as tending to improve the not-too-happy relations between our countries.

The nature of this unexpected move is such as to make it patent that it is a direct overture of sorts. The dominant military party, whose Chinese policy has caused the American-Japanese difficulties, has been pushed gently (or did it move voluntarily?) out of the center of the spotlight.

Both of Japan's great political parties have ministers in the new cabinet to make it representative of the country as a whole. Admiral Yonai is said to be our friend. In short, everything is set for tea for two.

This startling change, however, is achieved with a certain naivety which rather labels it as an expedient born of necessity. It comes on the eve of the expiration of the Japanese-American trade treaty which we have denounced.

Vital to Nippon
Renewal of this agreement is vital to Nippon, since under it the Japanese have been "getting some two-thirds of their essential supplies with which to wage war against China. There is no alternative material available."

Because of this and other circumstances of the quarrel, I find difficulty in escaping the conclusion that Japan's change of tactics is merely a palliative to meet the crisis of the expiring treaty—an effort to influence us to renew the pact. The change isn't calculated to cure the fundamental cause of the malady. It will take more than tea for two to remedy that.

The difficulty between the United States and Japan has run so long and has so many angles that it seems very complicated at first.

Danielsen Given Award by Jaces

Receives Key for Distinguished Service to Organization

Waupaca—At a banquet of Junior chamber of commerce Monday evening, Reuben Danielsen was awarded the key for his civic activities and meritorious service to the local organization. The presentation, first of its kind in the history of the local Jaces, was made by Fred Boughton, Appleton, vice president of the Wisconsin Junior Chamber of Commerce, and came as a surprise to Mr. Danielsen.

The award is given by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce to any man in the community of Jaces age, between 21 and 35 years, and is always given during the week of national observance of the organization.

Among the activities attributed to Mr. Danielsen are his interest in Boy Scout work, his civic interests, a director of the local organization since it received its charter six years ago, holder of the presidency with the exception of the presidency which he declined three times. Mr. Danielsen is also a state director of the junior chamber of commerce, chairman of the Wisconsin Junior Chamber of Commerce committee on youth welfare activities. He has attended every state convention since he became a member.

SCHEDULE MEETING

Believes WPA Program Will Go On Indefinitely

National Administrator's Assistant Sees It as Permanent Project

Milwaukee—(P)—Mrs. Florence S. Kerr of Washington, assistant to the national WPA administrator, believes the WPA program of public works will be continued under some guise as a permanent part of the nation's social system.

"I am one of those people who look forward to the final absorption of the WPA program into the greater, more integrated, comprehensive social program of the country," she told a meeting sponsored by the Milwaukee Business and Professional Women's club here last night.

"Our identity may be lost but our work will not. It would be a foolish kind of prosperity that was too poor to continue such work," she added.

"The time has not yet come when we can think of getting along without public work for the unemployed. One of its very important functions is the maintenance of popular purchasing power. To me this phrase—popular purchasing power—is a significant indication of the fact that we entered upon a new economic era, in which we recognize the dependence of industry and business upon the whole American people—not just a prosperous fraction of it."

"This group of about two million desperately needy people spend their WPA wages immediately for the necessities of life. They support many a corner grocery store. Their WPA dollars flow back quickly to the factory and the farm. And their wages constitute an important part of our economic life."

Judges Rule Against Newspaper Strikers
Los Angeles—(P)—Secondary picketing of advertisers in a newspaper involved in a union dispute with employees is illegal, in the opinion of three superior court judges, sitting en banc.

They made the ruling in refusing to modify an injunction against the American Newspaper Guild, prohibiting picketing of advertisers in the Huntington Park Bulletin. The decision affirmed that constitutional freedom of speech does not grant the right to involve innocent third parties in labor disputes.

Heil Promises Aid In Southern Fight For Rate Revision

Returns to Wisconsin After "Good Will" Tour in South

Milwaukee—(P)—Governor Julius Heil, tanned from a combined southern vacation and "good will" tour, returned to Milwaukee yesterday and declared Wisconsin could assuage any southern ill-feeling over the state oleomargarine tax through a program of education and friendly cooperation.

"They're not going to boycott our butter or other products and we're not going to boycott them on things that we need," Heil said.

He conferred with the governors or their personal representatives in Tennessee, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana. Heil asserted he planned to send a Wisconsin delegation to a conference of southern governors at Nashville Jan. 24-26 to discuss state trade barriers.

"I'm going to ask Ralph Ammon, head of our department of agriculture, members of the agricultural advisory board; Senator Harry Bolen, the Democratic leader from Port Washington, and others to go down there and represent Wisconsin and tell those southern leaders we want to be fair with them and we want them to be fair with us."

Wants "Free Trade"
Heil said he had promised Governor Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas that he would make efforts to remove the Wisconsin 15 cents a pound tax on oleomargarine, and had assured Governor Edward Rivers of Georgia he would aid the south in its fight for freight rate revisions.

"My recommendation is that we help the south get fair freight rates. A free interchange of commerce—free trade, if you wish—should be enforced between the 48 states," Heil said.

He added: "When they quoted me in the south as saying I was boss of the Republican party here, they got me wrong. I merely said by virtue of the vote at the polls I still was head of the party."

PRaises Heil
Little Rock, Ark.—(P)—Pledge of Governor Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin to seek elimination of his state's 15-cents-a-pound tax on oleomargarine drew praise from Governor Carl E. Bailey yesterday.

"His statement brands him as a very courageous politician since his attitude obviously is bound to be contrary to that of many interests in his state," Bailey said. "His action can be interpreted only as an attempt to exalt the unity and welfare of the nation as a whole rather than that of some particular section."

Heil, on a tour of southern states, made his pledge at Atlanta, classing the oleomargarine tax as his state's only barrier to friendly relations with the south.

Southern cotton seed producers have criticized the Wisconsin levy, enacted to protect that state's dairy industry. Some have advocated boycotting Wisconsin butter.

Average Prisoner Is 32 Years Old

Warden Burke Says State Inmates 'Run Down Physically'

The "average" prisoner at the state prison in Waupar is "run down physically," and knows little of beneficial recreation, Warden John T. Burke said in talk before Lawrence students in convocation yesterday morning.

Burke said the average inmate is 32 years of age, has been sentenced for three years, and has had a fifth or sixth grade education.

"When they get out they are in the prime of life," the warden said, "and what happens to them immediately after their release is of great importance."

Council Votes to Place Night Crew On Snow Removal

Aldermen Ask Park Board to Supervise City Skating Rinks

New London—Snow removal in the city of New London looked as an immediate major problem before the city council last night and even as new snow fell aldermen debated the best methods of removing the precipitation of the weekend blizzard.

The city fathers voted on the recommendation of Lynn Springmire to place a night crew on the job and continue snow removal day and night. In two days of work only the main intersections of the business section have been cleared away. As chairman of the board of public works, Springmire offered the alternative of hiring outside trucks at $14 a day each or working nights.

Complaints and requests by residents have been received by all city departments and officials, the discussion revealed, but there is little more that can be accomplished with present facilities, it was stated. Mayor Wendlandt pointed out that the snowfall was unusual and appealed for cooperation and patience on the part of residents and consideration and judgment on the part of snow removal workers.

Complaints of lack of supervision at city skating rinks also were aired and the responsibility was placed with the park board which was complimented for well-ordered supervision in past years. Special rink guardians will be appointed.

The re-appointment of Victor Thomas as city building inspector for the year 1940 was approved.

Granted License
A. A. Trambauer was granted a tavern liquor license for the Kory Corner Cafe at 211 S. Pearl street. The place already holds a beer license.

The application of Robert Klesow, Sr., for a tavern license at 421 North Water street was withheld for investigation. The building has been purchased from Walter Klesow but the place was previously denied a license because of lack of sanitary facilities. Application for the license was made on condition that issuance of the license be assured when the improvements are completed. A city ordinance prohibits re-establishment of a tavern in a building vacant for four months and also requires ownership of the building by a non-resident for three months. The building has been vacant several months and the period of ownership must be established to determine conformity with the ordinance.

The question of changing the city assessor's job from an elected position to one of civil service or special appointment as a full-time occupation was introduced by Alderman Harry Emans and taken up by the council. The proposed change was endorsed by Alderman A. R. Margraff and Mayor E. W. Wendlandt who pointed out with Emans that the job is the most important city position, the entire financial foundation of the city resting on the abilities of the assessor. City Attorney Giles H. Putnam was instructed to study new state legislation which might permit the change by a referendum vote of the people.

It Is Said--

That Sunday's snow blizzard provided New London motorists with an hour of unusual entertainment Sunday afternoon. During the height of the storm several cyclists conceived the idea of riding in the snowstorm over the snow-blanketed streets and a round-up of enthusiasts was made. For an hour twelve riders straddled seven "bikes," most of them doubled up, and roared around the city through a foot of snow. There were some spills and a lot of pushing but it seems they had a lot of fun. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Huntley, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Schneider, Jr., John Tuft, Clarence Gotgetreu, Mike McIlraith, George and Ray Baerwald, Sherman and Harold Herres, and Walter Lewis.

McGregor Rites to be Held Friday Afternoon

New London—Funeral services for L. S. McGregor, 69, former New London resident who died at Beaver Dam on 9 o'clock Tuesday morning after a 4-months illness, will be held at 2:30 Friday afternoon at the Glina and Learman Funeral home. The Rev. B. E. Halliday of the Methodist church will be in charge and burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery.

Mr. McGregor was born July 25, 1870, in New London and lived here all his life except for several years spent in the timberlands of northern Wisconsin. He operated a livery, stable here for 20 years and conducted a grocery store for some time, afterwards engaging in sales work. He moved to Beaver Dam last July.

Surviving are the widow; one daughter, Mrs. Vernon Otto; one son, Fred; and two grandchildren, all at Beaver Dam.

CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

Christus Lutheran congregation at Clintonville will dedicate its new edifice at special services Sunday. The new church is located at the corner of N. Main and Fifteenth streets and is 45 by 100 feet with a full basement. It is of Lannon stone construction and has a seating capacity of 550 persons. Work on the building was started last spring and the cornerstone laying ceremonies took place July 30, 1939. This is the third church building of Christus Lutheran congregation, which was organized in 1883; and celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in 1938. The first church was a small frame building, the present one is a brick structure, and the new one is of Lannon stone. At the right is a picture of the Rev. E. C. Stubenvoll, present pastor.

Christus Lutheran Church Clintonville Will Dedicate Its New Edifice Next Sunday

Clintonville—Dedication services for the beautiful new Christus Lutheran church will take place Sunday at Clintonville, Jan. 21. A number of neighboring congregations have been invited to attend.

At 9 o'clock in the morning there will be a formal service opening the doors of the church, which will be in charge of the Rev. E. C. F. Stubenvoll, pastor of the congregation. He will be assisted by several of the visiting pastors.

The day's ceremonies will be concluded with an organ recital Sunday evening with W. J. Brockman of Milwaukee as the guest organist. The speaker at this evening service will be the Rev. Gerhard Nass of Pella. A new two-manual pipe organ has been installed at the church during the last week. Mrs. R. H. Schmidt is the church organist.

Several other services will be held at the new church during the week.

President Fences With Press About Third Term Riddle

Well-Informed Sources Feel Decision Will be Known Before March 4

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—President Roosevelt finds it more convenient nowadays to indulge in good-natured repartee with the reporters about the third term riddle than to answer any questions directly about his political plans.

The president faces the barrage of questions twice every week and in some form or other a question about a third term usually comes up. This time it came about an article published in "The United States News," of which this correspondent happens to be the editor, stated that Mr. Roosevelt had reached a decision to announce at a given date that he would not seek the nomination for third term.

Mr. Roosevelt was pressed to comment and he jocularly remarked that he was not making a statement on the article was a new technique of making money. The president did not know that the press associations and newspapers which asked about reprinting the article in question were given this privilege without any fee or charge, in accordance with the usual courtesy that prevails in such matters.

But at the time it seemed to the president about as good a way as any to throw the questioners off the track and get rid of the query. He did not deny or affirm the statements in the article.

Fences With Press
The president is unlike any of his predecessors in the White House in that he permits impromptu questioning on almost any subject and often he adopts the lighter vein as the best defense for the moment. Mr. Roosevelt fences with the press better than any other president, and his press conferences are a most enjoyable institution.

In a sense it is a bit presumptuous to print anything about the third term nomination, for the comment cannot but be somewhat embarrassing and in these days of treacherous events abroad the less politics mentioned perhaps the better. But the third term riddle is one that the nation insists on talking about, and every magazine and newspaper finds its readers inquiring for the latest information or inference or analysis thereon because the question of who is to head the government is a matter of more than passing interest to the American people.

The writer did not happen to be the author of the article in "The United States News," but satisfied himself as editor before printing it that the men who developed it had learned the answer to the third term riddle from the few hereabouts who really know it.

The article did not say Mr. Roosevelt would not be nominated, but did point out that Mr. Roosevelt would seek publicly to eliminate himself, after which there would be a draft-Roosevelt movement. The article went on to mention Jan. 20 or March 4 as two specific dates on the calendar on which an announcement would be made, the second date marking the end of Mr. Roosevelt's seventh year in the White House. Mr. Coolidge revealed his plans on the anniversary of the day he took the oath of office.

Early Announcement
There are some well-informed sources in the capital here who feel that the president's decision may become known before March 4, but that he will choose not to seek the nomination appears now to be a foregone conclusion. Postmaster-General Farley is being quoted this week as having said to a group of students at Columbia university that the president would run only if drafted, which corroborates the view that Mr. Roosevelt will make it plain he does not seek re-nomination.

There are many on Capitol Hill who insist that silence on the part of Mr. Roosevelt will give encour-

Student Council Will Sponsor Magazine Drive

The Appleton High school Student council again will sponsor a magazine drive at the school to raise money. The drive will be conducted by George Limpert from Feb. 7 to 15 through the school homerooms. Last year, the proceeds of the campaign were used to purchase a motion picture machine and new stage equipment.

37 Cases of Contagion Reported During Week

Thirty-seven cases of contagious diseases were reported to the city health department last week, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer, including 23 cases of chicken pox, 8 cases of measles, three of whooping cough and three cases of tuberculosis. Active cases at the end of the week were 17 cases of measles, 30 of chicken pox and 23 of whooping cough.

Farm Posts Available At Employment Office

F. R. Gehrke, manager of the Appleton office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service, said today that several farm jobs are available at his office for farm hands. Some of the posts are year around jobs while others are for the winter only.

agement to a draft movement and that even if he eliminates himself by public statement he will be considered for the nomination anyhow until he definitely says he will not accept if nominated. It is pointed out, however, that Mr. Coolidge never made that fateful statement and yet his wish was respected by the national convention of his party. Mr. Roosevelt could adopt the same attitude. Looking at it from the standpoint of those who want to draft the president, a statement of renunciation is a prerequisite because the spontaneity of a draft movement depends upon the satisfactory elimination of an apparent desire by the man in office to get the nomination.

The exact date for the public announcement is, of course, something Mr. Roosevelt alone can decide or change his mind about, but the March 4 date would fit in with the plans of other candidates who feel in all fairness that they should be given a chance between then and June to develop their campaigns for the nomination with the Roosevelt riddle answered.

Some day the whole idea of Mr. Roosevelt ever having for one moment even thought of wishing to be a third term candidate may turn out to be just a big joke perpetrated on the country by a few overzealous friends in the administration who never really knew about Mr. Roosevelt's deep-seated respect for the 2-term tradition in America.

STORMS AHEAD FOR THE MONROE DOCTRINE

According to President Cardenas the Monroe Doctrine is officially at an end and has been duly placed in a sepulchre.

In the recent announcement of Mexico's President Cardenas is placed upon the fact that this country in connection with other nations of the Western Hemisphere signed a pact at Buenos Aires in 1936 by which intervention in each other's affairs was prohibited. The construction given this pact by Cardenas is the same construction the Post-Crescent placed upon it at the time and therefore opposed its embracement as a needless adventure that was quite likely to do more harm to American diplomacy than anything else. On the other hand President Roosevelt by recent statements has indicated a conviction that the Monroe Doctrine is as virile and vigorous today as it has ever been. Since might so often makes right in the construction of international agreements, the conclusion which America insists upon would probably prevail except that in case of controversy we are bound by agreement and tradition to arbitrate. And we may find ourselves arbitrating the right to protect the Western Hemisphere due to the grandiose scheme at Washington to parade the empty Neighboring Policy.

But why should Mexico, one may inquire, oppose the right of America to protect the land of the Montezumas from alien encroachment. Of course, Mexico would be happy to have the advantage of our army and navy should some designing country seek to coerce or subdue it, but it wishes to be free in certain respects that run counter to the Monroe Doctrine.

Supposing Mexico wished to grant Japan the right to use the Gulf of California for anchorage? Or granted the Japs the right to settle its west coast? The suppositions are not extreme since the latter one was in process of conclusion about 15 years ago when America intervened and swept the checkers off the table. Or suppose Mexico were willing to grant some European tyrant a naval base upon the Gulf?

The American people must understand that all the way from the Rio Grande to Rio de Janeiro there are about a score of countries, all of which have been at one time or another in the past 50 years in the hands of unscrupulous tyrants who would willingly sell out any assets they have for gold. And such condition actually exists now in a considerable number of them.

With most of the central American countries, with Mexico, Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, Colombia and Bolivia, it has seemed at times that their rulers craved nothing more than the privilege of dying in Paris. As soon as many of these men came to power they sold various rights to foreign powers, transferred the money to Paris or London and bided their time as against the day when their people would arise. When revolt was in the air they quietly sailed for the more restful and splendid European capitals. More than one Mexican president has died in Europe leaving a fortune to his family there.

What Cardenas may presently have in mind is beside the point. Either America must reassert its Monroe Doctrine or bow its head to the conclusion that one of the vagaries of the New Deal has increased the hazards of its position beyond estimation.

WE NEED SUCH MEN

The lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, Walter S. Goodland, announces that he will retire from office with the expiration of his present term, that he has no further ambition for a public place.

That statement, we feel, will be regretted by many friends of the man who has served the state honorably and well. It can be predicted also that some of those friends will try to persuade him to change his mind, for the state government of Wisconsin, and particularly today, needs men of his stature, his experience, mature judgment and insight into men and public affairs.

Mr. Goodland was drafted for the office he now holds by the 1939 Coalition committee, a group of men who subordinated artificial partisanship for common sense, recognized the unity of aims of Republicans and Democrats in state politics, and nominated a fusion state of candidates which did a remarkable job in a short campaign. He accepted the invitation to an office he did not seek, not because of any false vanity—the character of the office and his previous record in public life belie that—but because he saw an opportunity for advancing the principles and ideals to which he had devoted his public career, both as newspaperman and politician.

In office he had but slight opportunity to influence the course of legislation or administrative policy, but the people of Wisconsin will gratefully remember that it was the lieutenant governor, on the occasion of a tie vote, who saved them from an iniquitous and a ridiculous gross income tax levy proposed by Governor Heil in a moment of rashness, an act for which Mr. Heil ought since that time to have thanked him.

Mr. Goodland is an elderly man and he has earned retirement. But his age is not a reason why the public should want him to quit. A dozen instances can be cited of the foremost men in history who did their most important work when past his years. Some men are old at 40; others young at 80. Mr. Goodland is not old, and the state government can very well use him.

HEROIC SERVICE

The United States Coast Guard becomes 25 years old this month, under its present name, although in August it will celebrate the 150th anniversary of its organization. By any name, however, the Coast Guard has established one of the most spectacular records among all government services.

Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury, is accredited with being the father of the Coast Guard. It was in 1790 that Hamilton asked the first congress to create a police organization for the suppression of smuggling and piracy. His request was granted in August of the same year.

The United States Coast Guard had its beginnings in the United States Revenue Cutter Service, the name given to the 10 vessels which were constructed as the result of Hamilton's petition. These boats were completed and put into service by November 1791 and for the next seven years comprised the only naval force of the United States. Even after the threat of war with France brought about the construction of a regular naval squadron, the revenue cutters in 1799 were made a part of the naval defenses by congressional order for a period of two years and were engaged actively in war service during the War of 1812, the Seminole Indian war of 1836, the Mexican war of 1846, the Paraguay expedition in 1858, and during the Civil war.

It was on January 2, 1915, that the cutter service was combined with the United States Life Saving Service and became the Coast Guard. Since then this service has taken on an increasing number of duties. The saving of life and property and assisting vessels in distress has won it one of the most unusual records of any government service. In addition to its many heroic rescues, the Coast Guard maintains the North Atlantic ice patrol, enforces federal laws pertaining to smuggling, mutiny, the prevention of oil pollution, harbor rules governing anchorage and movement of vessels, immigration, quarantine and neutrality, the protection of the fur seal, game birds and fisheries, and countless other regulations.

AND SO AMERICA WELCOMED THEM

Nicholas Dozenberg, admittedly Soviet Russia's secret agent in this country to organize the Communist party, pled guilty in federal court at New York to fraud and perjury in obtaining American passports. In pleading guilty Dozenberg said he was born in Riga but in obedience to the tutelage of the Red high command he placed the site of his birth in North Dakota.

Dozenberg is by nature and propensity a second story man. With all the instincts of a human cat, excepting its courage, he found life relatively easy, supported as he was by paychecks collected among the sacred "peasants and workers" of Russia.

At about the time Dozenberg was pleading guilty a man who carried the Anglicized name of James Wheeler-Hill, former national secretary of the Bund, was likewise pleading guilty in another court to two perjury charges somewhat along the lines of action established by his Russian contemporary. Wheeler-Hill had claimed he was born in California but in court he admitted that his place of nativity was Latvia at a time when it was part of Russia.

While these Bundists and Bolos are quick to charge persecution they are practically prevented from so doing by their own pleas of guilty. And these pleas were not obtained from them by Lubyanka third degrees since they were upon bail at the time they determined that the best way out and obtaining the softest sentence possible suggested a little of the truth for a change.

Rabbits are unusually numerous this year in many western states.

Many poultrymen now practice out-of-season hatching of chicks in the fall, winter and spring.

Founded in 1726, and one of the youngest cities on the South American continent, Montevideo has a population of over 600,000.

Coin-machine manufacturers recently developed a coin-operated milk dispenser and a coin-operated book vendor.

Over 2,000,000 cases of sardines were packed in Maine in 1939, according to the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

About 32,000,000 people—80 per cent of them Ukrainian stock—now inhabit the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—The various state presidential primaries are going to be no help in breaking the president's silence on the third term question.

Political leaders were counting on these contests to force him to show his hand. But he has worked out a canny strategy to out-wit them. Private word has gone out from the White house to third-term boomers that the president is not sanctioning the entry of his name in any primary where the state law requires a personal authorization from a candidate. On the other hand, nothing will be done to stop any slate of pledged delegates in states where the permission of candidates is not needed.

In other words, "He ain't sayin' yes and he ain't sayin' no"—as usual.

This wily evasion was put to first use last week in meeting an undercover situation that had developed in Ohio. This state requires candidates to make written declarations, and a number of state leaders made a secret drive to persuade Roosevelt to enter the primary. They assured him of a hands-down victory, and argued that by sweeping Ohio he would torpedo all the other Democratic hopefuls, thus ensure his certain domination of the convention.

The president couldn't see it. Two long private conferences with Charles West, former under secretary of the interior, who acted as emissary of the Ohio leaders, failed to produce any results. Roosevelt didn't irrevocably shut the door on his running again, but he did definitely tell West he was not entering any state primary.

Note—Ohio third-termers now are working to put up a stalking-horse "favorite son" candidate who would be for another term for Roosevelt.

Prayer for Two

There is a certain well-known society maiden in Washington who can tell you—but probably won't—just what the mysterious Chinese inscription on her treasured antique jade pendant means. She got the answer from Dr. Hu Shih, learned and courtly Chinese Ambassador, at the White House diplomatic reception.

He complimented her on the rarity and beauty of the exquisite necklace, and she asked him if he could decipher the inscription.

"I've long wanted to know what it means," she said. "But no one seems to be able to translate it. Is it really Chinese? I've almost decided it's not."

"Oh, yes, it's Chinese," replied Dr. Hu Shih. And after studying it a few moments, he inquired, "You really wish to know what it means?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Then, Madame, I can tell you. It is a prayer for twins."

Monopoly Lobbyists
Congress has been in session only a week, but already insurance and other business lobbyists are busy harpooning the anti-monopoly committee. They are using crafty strategy.

Instead of attacking the committee head-on, which would give the liberals the chance to raise the cry of "Wall Street interference," the lobbyists are using the popular demand for economy to cut off its funds.

The Monopoly committee needs $200,000 to complete its inquiries and publish a score of sensational reports which will make juicy reading in a number of key industries.

It's these reports, containing a great wealth of secret data and figures unearthed in the committee's year and a half investigation, that the business moguls are shooting at. Big business doesn't want the reports to get out, and if the committee can be kept from getting the necessary funds, the reports never will be published.

First showdown on the issue soon will take place at a meeting of the committee called by Chairman Joe O'Mahoney.

"Der Tag"

Many an ambassador comes to Washington and goes again, leaving no more trace than a faint aroma of champagne and cigars. Carlos Martins will be remembered for something more substantial.

An Ambassador of Brazil, Martins has been applying his ebullient personality, plus his skill as an astute businessman to a project which would open rich mineral resources in Brazil and profit his countrymen and North Americans alike.

Last year the United States Steel corporation sent experts to Brazil to examine deposits of iron and coal, with the idea of establishing a steel industry there. The experts found the resources ample and President Vargas willing.

The undertaking would cost the tidy sum of $35,000,000, but, unlike most Yankee exploitations of the past, it envisages joint U. S. and Brazilian participation. It would give Brazil the chance to manufacture steel needed in its own industry, instead of consuming its foreign exchange for purchases from abroad.

Discussions have now moved from Rio to Washington, New York, and Pittsburgh. Martins, with his able financial attaché, Eurico Penteado, has conferred with U. S. Government officials and with U. S. Steel. And today (January 17) is "Der Tag." For in Pittsburgh the finance committee of U. S. Steel is meeting to pass upon the project.

The outcome is being watched as a test of whether the big talk about inter-American cooperation can get down to the bed rock of forward-looking business relations.

Merry-Go-Round

Warmly appreciative, Alf Landon has traveled thousands of miles to make speeches in small towns because certain men living in them befriended him in the 1936 campaign. . . . Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the potent finance committee, drew a personal note of praise from the president for his proposal of a joint congressional committee to study both government expenditures and taxes as a preliminary to drafting new tax legislation. . . . Being Mayor of New York is a far cry from dirt farming, but according to the Farm Bureau, Fiorello LaGuardia is one of the best friends the farmer has.

In connection with the farm bureau's current membership drive, LaGuardia is edging out giving behind-the-scenes help to Ed O'Neill, FB president, in putting through the crop parity payment bill last year, by linking up labor Congressmen hostile to the legislation. . . . Decorations in the office of Joe Martin, house Republican floor leader, leave no doubt of his political persuasion. Scattered about are no less than ten bronze elephants presented by admirers.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

BECAUSE YOU CALLED ME FRIEND

Because you called me friend, I still
In times of loneliness and fear
Can draw upon my stubborn will,
And fighting, find you near.

For every disillusionment,
I see a golden star ascend,
Trouble is followed by content,
Because you called me friend.

Winter is long. Its shadows cling
After the gloomy days depart,
Because you called me friend, the Spring
Is dancing in my heart!

Plants grown in houses should be watered thoroughly, and then not watered again until the surface of the soil is somewhat dry.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Canada ought to be flattered to blazes at appointment of James H. R. Cromwell as U. S. minister there. This is the first time Ottawa has been classed as a spot where a diplomat must have money in reach to keep up appearances.

There was a time, not far back, when diplomatic posts were considered pure political gravy. The lads most willing to open their purses to finance political campaigns were the ones who got their choice.

That tradition has not altogether faded, even in these days of career diplomats. It prompted one of the wise cracks that started Washington cackling when Cromwell, economist and husband of extremely wealthy Doris Duke Cromwell, was appointed.

"Jimmy Cromwell got Canada," went the jibe, and "Doris Duke got the Democratic party deficit."

Looks Like Duck Soup
Cromwell won't have trouble with confirmation in the Senate, likely enough, because heaps of members think he is a first-rate economist. Because he can lend plausibility to some pretty exciting economic theories, diplomacy ought to be duck soup for him.

There are several diplomatic posts which traditionally—and factually—are money posts. Ambassadorships to England, France, Germany and Russia always have cost more than the income. At London, Joseph P. Kennedy usually is listed as a multi-millionaire. His recent predecessors—Robert Bingham, Andrew W. Mellon, Charles G. Dawes, Alanson B. Houghton and F. B. Kellogg—rarely had to patronize dime stores.

Our recollection is that Kellogg once remarked that the ambassadorship shook him down about $20,000 a year and he was not a free-spending man. We would bank on it that Kennedy isn't getting by with so little out of pocket. His $17,000 salary and $5,000 to $10,000 expense account wouldn't last him much past Easter.

The three immediate predecessors of William C. Bullitt at Paris—Jesse I. Straus, Walter E. Edge and Myron T. Herrick—also were wealthy men.

The outstanding early ambassador to Paris was Benjamin Franklin. While he made himself famous with such slogans as "A penny saved is a penny earned," he, nevertheless, was one of the richest men in the colonies and his wealth, along with his brains and old brown coat, contributed to his prestige abroad.

An Exception
The three outstanding "men of wealth" now or recently in diplomatic posts are Kennedy, Bullitt and Joseph E. Davies. There were other candidates of wealth ready for the jobs, but these three were chosen as the cream of the crop and nobody in Washington is ready to doubt that they are good as diplomats.

All three are rich in their own rights while Davies' fortune was supplemented a few years ago by marriage to Marjorie Post Hutton, who started Russia by moving to Moscow with 2,000 pints of frozen cream to supply the embassy when Davies was appointed there. Later Davies was transferred to Belgium; now he's doing special service in the state department.

It is a sort of half-baked mystery why this government does not appropriate enough to finance its ambassadors at expensive posts. It may come about as the idea of career diplomacy is extended. England reputedly lays out $75,000 a year for expenses on its Washington embassy, in addition to salaries. The Japanese entertainment and expense kitty here is put at about $40,000.

Receptions and dinners must be given and returned, for information and good will are gained that way. In smaller posts salaries will pay costs. The factors have led to a steady expansion of the career service. Given its primary boost by Secretary of State Hull in the early twenties, the service has expanded until now it is estimated that 80 per cent or more of our diplomatic posts are filled by career men. Joseph Grew, now at Tokyo, is a shining example.

Even so, it is nice if a diplomat can have a little private income. Hugh Wilson, a careerist, survived the usually expensive post at Berlin with a modest personal income to supplement his salary.

Mrs. Lightfuss Head Of Ladies Aid Society

Manawa—Mrs. Rheinar Lightfuss was elected president of the Ladies Aid society of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Symco, at the annual election held in connection with the organization's regular meeting Saturday afternoon. She succeeds Mrs. Albert Jahnman who had served as president for the last five years.

Officers reelected included Mrs. William Kuschel, vice president; Mrs. Harold Frazier, secretary; and Mrs. G. H. Kitzmann, treasurer.

Mrs. Chris Larson, Mrs. Louis Ferg, Mrs. Edward Herman and Mrs. Edward Henschel were admitted as new members. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting by Mrs. Joseph Brennstuhl and Mrs. H. A. Bonkowski.

Taxes amounting to $70,000 still remain unpaid for 1938 in Waupesa county, according to figures released this week by L. J. Stadler, county treasurer. The total represents 7 per cent of the entire tax amounting to about $964,000.

The amount unpaid is practically the same as a year ago on 1937 taxes. Stadler stated, with $40,000 or 41 per cent still due from taxes of two years ago.

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—This is the time of the year when candidates for public office begin admitting coyly to newspapermen that "friends" have urged me to run. Several such stories have appeared lately on the Progressive front.

Thus far, however, there is only one man in that party who has announced, frankly and publicly, that he is running for governor because he was the job. He is Henry Gunderson of Portage, former lieutenant governor, who enters the race knowing full well that the LaFollette leadership of the party doesn't welcome him.

But since Gunderson is running, it may give an idea of what the Progressive campaigners will be saying to have a look at the platform which he has drafted in preliminary form and is now sending around to his friends and supporters.

AGRICULTURAL PLANK
Gunderson's plank on agriculture repeats the usual political speeches on the subject—that farmers' income is too small, that the farm debt situation is dangerous, that the farmer is the backbone of the nation—and then he proposes the creation of a new state department for the purpose of assisting farmers to organize to better their economic status.

Significantly too, in his discussion of his labor stand, he proposes to reenact the 1937 labor relations act which the Republican administration repealed—but to exempt farmers and their employees from its provisions. The old law's application to farm industries, it will be remembered, was one of the decisive factors in its repeal at the hands of the last legislative session.

OTHER IDEAS
Gunderson reveals that he will appeal strongly to the highway interests in his campaign, although he will again slant that appeal in the direction of rural residents. The state spends $485,000,000 a year for highway transportation, he maintains, and he will propose means to reduce that cost, his platform promises, by forbidding any diversion of state highway funds to uses other than highways, by a definite planned program of construction, maintenance, snow removal, traffic regulation and safety on all classes of highways, and by legislation which would make the state liable for the interest costs on county highway bonds (now paid from real estate taxes).

Shrewdly he asserts that western and northern Wisconsin, heart of the Progressive districts which will decide the Progressive primary, "have been sadly neglected" in highway construction and improvement.

TAXATION
In his taxation statement, Gunderson repeats orthodox Progressive ideas, maintaining that a greater portion of governmental costs ought to be assessed against income tax payers, for the benefit of property taxpayers.

Income and inheritance taxes should entirely pay for the public school system, he claims, and motor taxes should bear the entire cost of the highway system, both of which now are heavy drains on real property.

Gunderson asserts that the state should meet the government half in old age pensions, and raise enough to pay one half of the $40 now allowed under federal laws. Significantly, he claims that the lo-

CHRONIC GOOSEFLESH

Cutis anserina (gooseflesh to you—and to me if I hadn't a medical dictionary at my elbow) is ordinarily a temporary or passing occurrence (almost said phenomenon again) provoked by exposure to cold or by horror or sudden terror.

What happens is simply contraction of the arrector pili muscle. This is a minute involuntary muscle attached to each hair follicle (pod, cup or depression from which the hair shaft grows) in such a way that contraction of the muscle makes the hair stand more nearly upright or "on end." As the hair follicles or wells around the hair shafts serve also as the orifices of the sebaceous or oil glands, contraction of the arrectores pili muscles has the effect of making these "pores" stand out, so that the appearance suggests the flesh of a goose after the feathers have been plucked.

Gooseflesh from cold passes as soon as you exercise, play or work hard enough to stir up your circulation. Gooseflesh from sudden terror passes as soon as the banshee goes along about her business.

In certain skin diseases or derangements the affected areas of skin assume an appearance of permanent gooseflesh. Conforming with an old medical custom, the malady being comparatively trivial, we call it keratosis pilaris, which in ordinary language is a formation of papules of horny character around the hair follicle openings.

most noticeable over the sides of the thighs and arms, where the skin resembles a nutmeg grater. Associated with the horny papules or chronic gooseflesh there is usually an abnormally dry state of the skin, deficient secretion of sebum or skin oil, and more or less harshness and irritation of some itching.

Hitherto physicians have had only vague ideas as to the cause of chronic gooseflesh once they have attached a ten dollar name to the complaint.

Recently students of nutrition have thrown light on the problem. From many parts of the world have come reports of studies which show fairly conclusively that vitamin A deficiency is an important factor of such skin trouble in a great many cases. In fact such investigators have learned that the peculiar nutmeg-grater-like appearance of the skin of the body (seldom the face) associated with abnormal dryness of the skin (xerosis) is generally evident long before manifestations of xerophthalmia, night-blindness and other serious nutritional disturbances develop, in persons who get insufficient natural vitamin A.

When I say natural vitamin A I mean the vitamin obtained from fish or animal sources, not carotene or pro-vitamin A present in fruits or vegetables, for this must be metabolized in the body before it can function as a vitamin.

While the normal body can manufacture vitamin A from carotene, I suggest that any one who wishes to test vitamin A as the possible curative factor needed should supplement his diet with a daily ration of cod liver oil.

calities should not be burdened with any part of the pension cost. The Portage candidate severely flails the Republicans for their reorganization program (which removed him from a comfortable tax-commission job and put him into the field as a candidate for governor) and promises that he will strive to reenact the Wisconsin Development authority and the Wisconsin Agricultural authority, LaFollette agencies privately incorporated to promote rural electrification and sale of agricultural products, and eliminated by the Republicans in the interests of economy.

of not less than 100,000 international units of natural vitamin A for two or three weeks—that means taking four capsules daily, each containing 25,000 units—and after that taking two such capsules daily for several months. At the same time, of course, he should see to it that his diet includes liberal proportions of the foods rich in pro-vitamin A, such as milk, cream, butter, yellow chives, mammalian liver, egg yolk, escarole (chicory greens), spinach, dandelion greens, beet greens, carrots, bananas, oranges, tomatoes, yellow squash, sweet potato, head lettuce, Romaine lettuce, kale.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Total Failure
Tried your potassium chloride treatment on my hay fever last August and September and found no relief whatsoever. Why do you recommend such a worthless remedy? . . . (B. M. G.)

Answer—Potassium chloride, available in five-grain or ten-grain tablets (dose, five or ten grains dissolved in glass of water three times daily for a week or so, as needed), has brought great relief to many sufferers with hay fever, chronic sinusitis, allergic rhinitis, eczema, hives, spasmodic asthma, and other manifestations of allergy. Why it fails in some cases I do not know. Sometimes readers who try it make the mistake of swallowing the tablet (or powder) as such; it should be taken only dissolved in plenty of water.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Jan. 15, 1930
William Konrad was reelected president of the People's Loan and Finance company at the annual meeting in the company offices on S. Appleton street that week. Other officers and directors also were reelected. They were Paul Smith, first vice president; Ben Plowright, second vice president; Basil McKenzie, secretary; William Roemer, treasurer. Directors for 1930 were John Neller, Earl Schuetter, John Balliet, Dr. William Moore, R. T. Gage.

With plows working day and night Tuesday and still busy Wednesday morning, Outagamie county roads were being cleared of the big snow drifts brought by Tuesday's storm.

The Boys Brigade of Neenah was to be 30 years old on Jan. 22 and in observance to the evening a special parade was to be held at one of the churches.

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Jan. 20, 1915
About $100,000 had been collected in taxes at the city hall, the amount comparing favorably with the collection of the previous year and being about a quarter of the total levy, $415,000.

A new type of road drag, which was claimed, may be used successfully on any road and which may even be used in the construction of new roads, was the recently patented invention of H. G. Moscherosch of Appleton. Charles Brockner of Stephenville aided him in the work.

The state department that day asked the British embassy to explain the seizure of the American steamer, Green Brier, loaded with cotton from New York to Bremen, which was detained for two days.

Russian attacks were beaten off in southern Bukovina with heavy losses to the invaders and the Austrians still held most of the main positions.

Rickman Defends Methods of Issuing 1940 Car Licenses

Denies Change in System Causing Confusion Among Motorists

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — Colonel George Rickman, head of the state motor vehicle division, today reiterated that his new system of distributing automobile license plates is superior to that employed by his predecessors, and scouted reports that there is confusion among motorists on the procedure to be followed in obtaining their licenses.

The fact that sales this year are considerably behind those of previous years is due not to the fact that the procedure has been revised, he maintained, but to the fact that the legislature has given motorists an additional month of grace.

Deadline for the issuance of 1940 plates is now April 1, he pointed out, at least a month later than in previous years.

Rickman has abolished the system of reminders which formerly prevailed, in which the motorist was sent an application card at the turn of the year. Through numerous publicity channels, the division is now telling the car owner that he is required merely to send in his certificate of title and a check in the amount of his fee to the motor vehicle division.

Rickman said he was confident that his publicity efforts, employing the newspapers and posters in garages, banks, telegraph offices and other public places, has informed most of the car owners of the change in the distribution system.

"Of course, we get an occasional letter from a man who doesn't know about the change," he said, "but in general it is working out fine and saving money."

The motor vehicle division several times lately has publicly invited motorists to send for their plates early, at the suggestion of the administration fiscal officers who are worried about the low balance in the state treasury.

The state office thus far has sold less than 100,000 sets of plates, although the Milwaukee branch office is disposing of licenses more rapidly than in previous years. There are about 750,000 motor vehicles in Wisconsin, and Rickman expects the rush to occur in the last two weeks of March.

13 Share Reward for Ray Olson Slaying

Hayward, Wis. —(AP)—Thirteen persons who figured in the capture and slaying of Ray Olson, 30, fugitive who killed two deputies last June, were allotted equal shares Tuesday in a $1,000 reward.

Olson, who shot Carl Johnson and Fred Scott while they and other possesmen were trying to arrest him on a minor charge, was slain 13 days later in Bayfield county.

Those sharing in the reward are Ernest Moore, Thomas Farley, Frank Flowers, Robert Couture, Victor Anderson, Otto Huddelson, William Bernhart, Jr., and Frank June Jr., all of Cable; Clyde Johnson, Earl Stewart, William Smith, Rodney Ogren and Theodore Bloom of Hayward.

Increasing Sentiment for Revising Wagner Act Noted Since House Probe of NLRB

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. — A majority of American voters expressing an opinion on the Wagner Labor act in a nation-wide Institute survey think the labor law should be revised at this time. Sentiment for revision has increased, the poll results indicate, since the house investigation of the labor board began making headlines a month ago.

With some discussion in congress for amending the controversial Wagner act, the Institute survey finds that less than one-third of voters with an opinion on the act think it should be left unchanged. Of the remainder, who are critical of the act, a few favor outright repeal, while the majority are for revision.

The survey, which began shortly after the house investigation opened, is the first of a series of surveys which will be conducted to measure the trend of sentiment. In this study, as in previous polls on the labor act, the Institute found a relatively high "no opinion" vote. More than half (58 per cent) of persons interviewed said they were either unfamiliar with the act or had not formed any opinion about it.

The issue put to the voters from coast to coast in a national cross-section was:

"Do you think the Wagner Labor act should be revised, repealed or left unchanged?"

Those with opinions voted as follows:

Revised	53%
Repealed	18

It is clear that while there is some difference of opinion as to whether the act should be repealed or merely amended, more than two-thirds of the voters with opinions in the survey are not satisfied with the law as it stands.

Previous Institute studies indicate that this attitude has prevailed for some time past. In four studies made between May, 1938, and November, 1939, the combined vote for revision or repeal has outweighed the vote for leaving the act unchanged. During the summer and early autumn of last year, when the war crisis overshadowed discussion of domestic issues, opposition to the act relaxed somewhat, but the vote for leaving the law unchanged has never grown to a majority.

The trend has been as follows:

	Revised	Repealed	Left Unchanged
May, 1938	43%	19%	38%
Nov., 1938	52	16	30
Mar., 1939	48	18	34
Nov., 1939	57	15	28
Today	53	18	29

'Stop and Swap' Auction Is Planned for Circle Meeting

A "stop and swap" auction, each member bringing an article of clothing in excellent condition—a good sweater, a hat or an evening dress of which she has become tired, or articles of children's clothing still in good condition but outgrown—is planned for the next meeting of the Evening circle of the Presbyterian church, on Feb. 20 at Memorial Presbyterian church. ### Midwest Isn't Interested in Assisting the Allied Cause

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Cleveland—It is with good reason that congressional leaders are nervous about going into a heavy program of aid for Finland. Any move which carries the slightest suggestion of possibly involving us in the European war will provoke a sharp protest from the country west of the Alleghenies.

Isolationist sentiment is quiet now. But it is watchful and ready to flame out again. I have talked during the last two weeks with a large variety of persons, in several states. There is no sign whatever of any shift in sentiment. Lord Lothian may tell us that Great Britain is fighting our battle. American correspondents home from Europe may tell us that we ought to get in and help the allies. President Roosevelt may warn us in his public addresses—as he did in his message to congress—that it would be a sorry world for this great democracy if it were left alone through a smash-up of the British empire. Still it is no sale.

I don't mean that the country west of the Alleghenies is indifferent to the war. On the contrary I find people everywhere intensely interested. They are following the news closely. They know what is going on. They are more interested in the war than in domestic politics, on the whole. The jockeying of prospective presidential candidates stirs only mild interest; in some places not even that. Greater issues are sensed. One of those—though not the only one—is the crisis in Europe.

Generally I find quite definite sympathies. There is no argument concerning the merits of the struggle in Europe. The desire for all Allied victory is evident everywhere.

The public mind, as I sense it in the middle west, is troubled. That is why any discussion of the European situation arouses such interest. Newspapers are full of it, radio is full of it, and in every community lecturers, foreign correspondents, foreign visitors, are talking to audiences about the war and its meaning. I have seen several of these audiences as they listened to such discussions and their interest is acute. Their questions afterward deal primarily with Europe rather than with domestic politics.

People Don't Think America Has Any Stake in This War
Now, if these people had definitely made up their minds that this war was strictly Europe's affair, they would be indifferent, uninterested. They would not be talking or thinking about it. The war breaks in on every luncheon, dinner and cocktail party.

Everyone knows, deep down, that it would be very serious business indeed if Germany and Russia won. No one is anxious to face the full implications of that. All are hoping and hoping that during the spring and summer the Allies will dispose of the matter by a victory or a demonstrated ability to withstand the expected full attack.

Until that time comes you don't find many people who will admit that we have any real stake in this war, or that we ought to be doing anything about it. The voting now is for keeping out, for avoiding anything that would tend to entangle us. Public sentiment will not at this time support any very material government advances to European powers.

Plan for Selling Rifles To Finland At $1 Each Is Risky
The United States government has advanced $10,000,000 to Finland and $10,000,000 to Norway. People are noting a proposal to give Finland the new army rifles, at a nominal price of $1 each. That proposition skates on rather thin ice as far as public sentiment out in the country is concerned. It might slide through without arousing much outcry. But it is a little risky. The Allies have several billions

Council Approves 60-40 System for Payment of Taxes

Deadline for First Installment Is Extended To Feb. 29

Kaukauna—The common council last night adopted the 60-40 plan for the payment of taxes, with 60 per cent to be paid by Feb. 29 and the remainder by June 30.

The time for the payment of taxes was extended to Feb. 29, without interest or penalty. No further extension will be given unless the full 60 per cent is paid by then. The second installment is to be paid in one sum, with interest of 1 per cent. There is no extension or deferment of special assessments and personal property taxes. If the first payment is made and the second missed, the 40 per cent is returned to the county treasurer in trust for collection.

The council accepted, subject to certain provisions, Thomas M. Armstrong's plan in the first ward, bounded by Wisconsin avenue, Main street and Gertrude street. Alderman Oscar Alter, sewer committee chairman, told the council that the plan presented drainage problems, and recommended that Armstrong agree not to hold the city responsible for any damage from this source, to give easements to the city so that drainage could be arranged and to make other improvements. Armstrong said he planned to build 10 homes in the subdivision. Alderman Jule Meenan stated the new plan would mean about $1,000 a year in taxes to the city.

Submits Report
Alderman Edward Steidl gave the report of the board of public works meeting Monday evening. A report by Frank M. Charlesworth, city engineer, gave the cost of the Patten road paving as $8,978, of which the city paid $5,790, with the rest borne by Thilmany Pulp and Paper company and Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company.

The cost is actually less than the amount stated, for WPA labor and material went into the project. Charlesworth added, the paving is 3,567 feet long. Steidl reported the board was considering a trade of property with Thilmany Pulp and Paper company, and that H. P. Weckwerth, utility superintendent, had been authorized to arrange the exchange. A trade of 7 acres of the city's property for 2 of the Thilmany company's plus a cash consideration, is a rough draft of the deal. The property is near the new power development. The board was directed to look into the making of sewer improvements on Demoy street with an eye to the possibility of paving that road.

Wipe Out Deficits
The council voted to wipe out any deficits in departmental budgets which arose last year, and to allow departments with a surplus to keep them in addition to this year's allotments. An ordinance authorizing the $140,000 utility loan was approved.

Relief expenses of $33,336 for 1939 were reported by Alderman Mertes, poor committee head. Mayor L. F. Nelson, referring to an item of $2,119 for doctors, suggested that the hiring of a city physician, as is done in Appleton and Menasha, might be considered. A meeting of the relief committee with the city's physician was suggested. Nelson also cited benefits accruing to the city from work at the power project, saying $48,962 had been spent since work began, and in addition the city had received crushed stone for paving work.

The city treasurer's report showed a balance of $7,748 Jan. 1. Lester J. Brenzel, city clerk, said he had had no replies to letters to the towns of Vandenberg, Kaukauna and Buchanan in regard to fire protection. The fire and police commission wrote it would take up a more conservative use of the police car at its Feb. 5 meeting.

Mart DeBruin, 181 W. Wisconsin avenue, was granted a bartender's license.

Gitlow Offers Interesting Story on Young Communists

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Ben Gitlow, the backslid bolshevik who once had command of the Muscovite conspiracy against the United States, offers interesting testimony regarding the Communist youth movement in a book called "I Confess." Mr. Gitlow may be remembered, as the witness who told the Dies committee about the use of forged American passports by Communist leaders, the counterfeiting of American money by agencies of the Soviet government and the diversion or misappropriation for political purposes of money contributed by generous Americans for the relief of victims of the Russian famine.

As to whether the American youth congress has been dominated by the Communists, there is still conflict of belief. In moments of unguarded enthusiasm prominent communists have jubilantly claimed as much, but Mrs. Roosevelt insists that she has satisfied herself by inquiry that this is not so. It has not been denied, however, that the young Communists tried to seize control or that they are influential in the movement, so Mr. Gitlow's remarks about the Communist youth should interest the non-Communist youth of the country and their parents.

"They broke with their families," he writes of the American youth who were drawn into the Communist movement, "because the family was a bourgeois institution which stood in the way of their Communist activities. Many completely divorced themselves from their parents. It was not unusual for parents to plead with us that we induce their children to show them some kind of consideration."

Mr. Gitlow cited the case of a father who entered the national office in Chicago and, placing an infant on the desk, told the party to take charge of the illegitimate child of his daughter, 16 years old, who had been seduced by one of the party leaders.

"Loose morals were general," he writes. "Party leaders changed their wives sometimes as often as one does an overcoat. The young Communists had but to see what their elders in the party were doing. It was no wonder that they defied all moral codes. If a young girl who joined the Communist youth organization insisted upon maintaining her chastity she was frowned upon as bourgeois by the self-styled revolutionaries who had just emerged from the knees of their parents."

Not understanding Gitlow's present hostility to the party from the control of which he was arbitrarily removed by Josef Stalin, there may be Americans who will hesitate to forgive a man who felt that "profligate sex relations among the youth were something we could not control and that as long as the youth could be depended upon to serve the interests of the movement it was best to leave the matter alone." He didn't voluntarily give up his command but was kicked out of the leadership of an organization—purporting to be an American political party—by a foreign despot, and only since then has he come to the point of deploring to a mild degree, having "seen" them (American youth) the example of the matter alone.

placing no moral limits about anything we found expedient to do."

It may be doubted that any man who once placed no moral limits on anything he found expedient to do is now telling the truth or even can be believed on his word alone. # Menasha Mayor Resumes Attack On School Board

Jensen Says He Would Welcome Mass Meeting At City Triangle

Menasha—Mayor W. H. Jensen renewed his attack on the board of education at the regular meeting of the council Tuesday night at the city hall.

"It's a world's fair building. They're repairing all of the time," the mayor charged in reference to the high school.

The incident which apparently aroused the mayor's ire was listed in the board minutes as payment of $584.26 to architects in the construction of the new school. The mayor objected to payment for the installation of the asphalt tile floor in the auditorium. He charged that the board spent over $5,000 last year for bushes, flowers, corrections, and pointing up of the building. He defied the board to challenge him and said he would welcome a mass meeting at the city triangle on the subject.

Threatens Injunction

The mayor threatened to secure an injunction to stop payment of the bills and said he thought the taxpayers would back him up. He also declared that an auditor was needed to go through the books of the board of education and of the city. Alderman O'Brien declared the board should submit a statement of all expenses since the new school was built.

"If I'm here next spring, I hope you aldermen vote five to five on the board of education and I'll know them all off. But I see a seneschal here the only one I'll back and he's alone just the way I was on the board," the mayor said.

Alderman William Karrow reported that about 60 students made use of the bus service to the high school Tuesday morning, when it was inaugurated. Karrow led the request of the council to the board of education for the service to Third ward high school students.

Aldermen Walter O'Brien and John Pinkerton were named to investigate distribution of business among the dairies of Menasha for relief clients. A letter from the relief department said that clients were permitted to choose the dealer from whom they wished to buy milk. The only restriction was that clients who had unpaid balances had to continue with that dealer. The quality dairy recently requested a share of the business. Alderman William DeBruin said that he had checked with two parties on relief and that they had not been asked which dairy they preferred.

Will Investigate

The mayor said that it was time to divide the business up and that the council should have a hand in the matter as long as it provides the money. Discussion of what dealers were entitled to business followed. Some aldermen suggested that dealers who had their plants in the city limits were the only ones entitled while others thought that dealers who had their plants outside of the city but who owned homes and other property in the city were entitled to a share of the business also. The matter was left to the two aldermen to investigate.

H. J. Humphrey, city sealer of weights and measures, presented his report for the last quarter of 1939. He inspected 16 gasoline pumps, found 26 counter scales accurate, adjusted one, and condemned nine. Nine platform scales were found accurate and one was condemned. Three computation scales and two suspension scales also were approved.

The council confirmed the action of the fire and police commissioners in naming Roy Verhoeven as fireman. He was placed on probation for a year. The clerk was instructed to give a monthly budget report to the commission. The annual report of Police Chief Alex Slomski was read.

Neenah High School Intramural Sports Tournaments Begin

Neenah—Twenty-five intramural sports tournaments got underway this week at Neenah High school gymnasium under the direction of Ole Jorgensen, physical education director.

Three leagues have been formed for the basketball tournament, and about four games have been played. More games will be played Friday noon.

The other tournaments are ping-pong, handball, badminton, shuffleboard, checkers and chess. Four tournaments are being conducted in each event for the freshmen, sophomore, juniors and seniors. The winners in each division will meet to determine the school champion.

Menasha Receives Approval on WPA Grant of $54,000

City-Wide Project Includes Curb, Gutter, Sidewalk, Storm Sewers

Menasha—Mayor W. H. Jensen has received notification from Washington that a city-wide WPA project for improvement of streets has been approved. The amount of the project is $54,790, the largest of any project approved for Wisconsin cities.

The project includes curb and gutter work, storm sewer installation, terracing, graveling, and sidewalk construction through the city. Terms of the project probably will be construed so that sidewalk repair, at least the replacement of defective blocks, will be included in the work.

The project may be used to replace the present project under which the WPA crews are installing sanitary sewer and some storm sewer in the west end of the Third ward. Under WPA regulations in future projects storm sewer work must be included with curb and gutter construction and separate projects are necessary for sanitary sewer work.

Mayor Jensen hopes to reserve the balance of the present WPA project for future sanitary sewer work. The project approved this week by President Roosevelt includes enough work to occupy the WPA crews through next summer while the sewer work will be reserved for next winter.

Council to Act on Change in System For Assessments

Will Hold Adjourned Meeting Thursday Night to Take Action

Menasha—The Menasha council will meet at 7:30 Thursday night in an adjourned meeting to take action on the proposed change in the assessment system. A committee of the whole meeting for discussion of the problem will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the city office. The aldermen also considered the problem at a committee of the whole meeting Monday night at which John Blenker, Neenah city assessor, described the advantages and difficulties of having a full-time assessor.

M. F. Crowley, Second ward alderman, told the council that it was time to act on the matter because the present system was set up under charter ordinance and there are legal delays in making a change. He declared that the position of assessor is important because his acts provide the income for the city. He urged all of the aldermen to consider the problem thoroughly as well as to attend the committee meeting Wednesday night and the adjourned meeting Thursday night. Edward Zeining also stressed the importance of thorough consideration of the proposed change.

A number of claims against the city were presented at the Tuesday night session. George Probst, route 2, Appleton, contractor who constructed the sidewalk for the city this summer, presented a claim for $801.14, alleging that the amount was due him for work done. The mayor declared that Probst did not have the amount coming and the bill was referred to the attorney, street committee and mayor.

Referred to Attorney

Harry Lopas, town of Menasha, claimed the city was responsible for water damage to his land just outside the city limits on Plank road because it did not provide a drainage ditch to remove storm water. His claim was referred to the attorney also.

Paul E. Saegert, Mathewson street, requested indemnification concerning ownership of land for which he was assessed and the request was turned over to the attorney. Mrs. Clifford Olson, California, wrote to the council requesting that the valuation of $4,100, placed on the home owned by her at 409 Elm street, be lowered. The attorney was instructed to inform her to present her claim to the board of review in August.

City Attorney Edward C. McKenzie reported that the appeal of Mrs. George Halloran in the condemnation suit to secure land for the widening of Pulaski street had been dropped. The original award of the appraisers was $366 and an appeal was brought by the property owner. It was settled for $400.

Agnes Price requested $800 for the land necessary for the continuation of Konemac street to London street. The request was referred to the finance committee.

Mayor Jensen submitted a tentative budget for the park board. The budget was ordered submitted to the park board with a request for a report back to the council. The budget set by the mayor called for $10,856.47. The council granted the park department $10,000 and the remainder would come from receipts at the Memorial building. Receipts at the Memorial building in past years have averaged $3,000. Alderman Crowley pointed out that the park board does not list the viettola fund as an asset and asked what disposition is made of the funds. He asked if the park board books have been audited.

Edward Zeining described the budget suggested by the mayor as "reasonable" and emphasized that the park board is to receive no more than $10,000 from the city for its expenses in 1940.

The Case for a Finnish Loan

The current news can be read only by keeping before one's eyes the map of Europe as a whole. We see then that there are three points of extreme tension. First, the frontier of Finland on the Karelian Isthmus and in the area between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega; second, the Netherlands-Belgium frontier with Germany between the Ardennes Mountains and the North Sea; third, the region occupied by Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria.

There is great tension at these three points because here are the three gateways through which the Nazi-Bolshevik aggression can be extended. The Finns are defending the gateway to the whole Scandinavian world; the Dutch and the Belgians, the Allies behind them, stand at the gateway to western Europe; the Hungarians and the Rumanians, with Italy, Turkey, and the Allies behind them, hold the gateway to the Danube valley, the Balkans, the eastern Mediterranean and the Near East. If these three gates can be locked and bolted, the war can be limited to the struggle between the Nazis and Hitler's Germany; if one or more of these gates is forced by the Nazis or the Bolsheviks or both, the war will engulf the whole of Europe, and may become a world war.

Scandinavia Is In Precarious Position

If we look further into the situation at these three gateways, we find that at two of them the small countries involved can count upon the immediate military assistance of great powers. If the Netherlands is attacked by Hitler, the Belgians, reinforced by the military force of France and Britain, will move instantly into the breach. If the Bolsheviks and Nazis strike at southeastern Europe, they will encounter somewhere and somehow the Italians, the Turks and the French army now gathered in Syria under General Weygand.

But if the Soviets break through the Finnish defenses, the position of Denmark, Sweden and Norway will be desperate. For if Russia gets within striking distance of Sweden, the probabilities are at least ten to one that Hitler will send an army through Denmark into Sweden to occupy it before Stalin can get control of the indispensable Swedish iron ores.

The position of Scandinavia is like that of Poland; the victory of one partner in the unholy alliance between Moscow and Berlin will cause the other to move in also, and as in the case of Poland, the Allies cannot easily intervene to avert the catastrophe. No doubt they would try. But before they could hope to rescue much Denmark, Sweden and Norway would be a shambles.

Present Frontier Combines Russians

The fact that the Scandinavian countries cannot be reinforced effectively and quickly enough by the Allies is the reason why it is of such urgent importance that the Finns be given the arms, which they use so well, to hold the gateway. The Finns have demonstrated that they have an excellent strategic frontier. The arrangement of lakes, forests, and railroads is such that not only the whole of Finland but the whole of Scandinavia can be defended on the short Mannerheim line in the Karelian Isthmus and on a front of about sixty miles between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega. If the Finns can stand in these two sectors, the front is too narrow for the Russians to bring into action their immensely superior numbers.

On the other hand, if the Russians get through either of these two narrow entries into Finland, then it is difficult to see where they can be stopped until they reach the Swedish frontier. If they are not stopped before they get to the Swedish frontier, it will be as necessary for Hitler to move into Scandinavia as it was for Stalin to move into Poland. It will then be necessary for the Allies to move in also. For they can never permit Hitler or Stalin to establish naval and air bases in Scandinavia. Upon the successful defense of Finland, therefore, hangs the fate of the three northern neutrals, whether they are to be occupied and pillaged and brutalized like the Hollywood — Ironically, the European war, which at first glance seemed certain to checkmate the filming of movies in England, may have the opposite result. Here's why:

England has passed emergency laws prohibiting the removal of actual cash from the kingdom.

American producers, who pictures are still playing to good business in England, find themselves, as a consequence of that law, possessed of big cash reserves in London banks — money that can only be spent there.

It would be suicide, for many of our producers, to leave such large sums frozen and inactive. Like every other industry spending untold millions in production, Hollywood must keep its dollars turning over constantly.

Now that the first panic produced by the war has subsided, certain Hollywood magnates are beginning to evolve a plan. Since there is no law against shipping film out of England, why not use that money lying idle there to produce pictures in English studios? The film would then be shipped to the United States, for exhibition here. In other words, why not convert that frozen capital into a needed, exportable commodity?

That the plan will be carried out is likely. And England, which shed tears over the

Security Board in Favor of More Pay For Losers of Jobs

Liberalization Sought Because Most States Have Big Surplus

BY W. E. RAGSDALE

Washington—The social security board would like to see more pay go out for a longer period to men who lose their jobs.

This is another way of saying the board favors a change in the unemployment compensation laws along the lines of an amendment proposed by Representative McCormack (D-Mass.) and approved by the American Federation of Labor.

That amendment, of which more is likely to be heard before congress goes home, would provide 20 weeks of benefits after a man loses his job. He would get from a minimum of $6 a week up to a maximum of $24 a week, according to how much he earned while working. He would wait only one week after losing his job before he started to draw benefits.

Under the present laws, he waits two weeks or longer before beginning to draw benefits—except in Texas, which has cut the period to one week. He draws these benefits an average of 10 weeks, or ranging from six or seven weeks up to a maximum of about $20.

The prompting for a campaign to liberalize the unemployment compensation laws comes from the fact that the states are developing a huge reserve fund. It stands now at a billion and a half dollars. In 1939, only one state—Idaho—paid out more in benefits than it collected in taxes. Twenty-eight of the states put more than half of the amount they collected into their reserve fund. Save for Idaho, all of the other 20 states put from 20 to 40 per cent of their tax collections into the reserve fund.

Members of the social security board argue that the present payments are inadequate and that it would be better to push them up than it would be to trim the tax payments in an effort to level off the inflow with the outpouring.

Show Increase in Milk Production

Report Gain in State of 8 Per Cent Over January of Last Year

Wisconsin farmers are feeding their milk cows more than in any January since 1933, and milk production in the state is about 8 per cent above the average per farm a year ago, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

An increase in the amount of feed fed is shown for all milk cows as well as for the cows now being milked. The quantity of grain, mill feeds and concentrates fed per cow milked is reported at 6.63 pounds, and for all cows in the dairy herd the amount of such feed averages about 4.83 pounds per cow.

Milk production per farm at the beginning of the month averaged about 219 pounds for Wisconsin, which is the highest average for any January since 1927. January 1 milk production this year was about eight per cent above the 10-year average for that date.

The increase in milk production as compared with the production of a year ago is almost entirely because of the increase in the amount of milk produced per cow. In addition to heavier feeding, the increase in milk production has been because of the mild weather which has been favorable for livestock.

State Quarantine on Alfalfa Pest Revised

To protect Wisconsin's 1,127,000-acre alfalfa industry from the ravages of the alfalfa weevil, a foreign insect pest, the state department of agriculture has revised its plant pest quarantine so as to include new weevil-infested areas in Arizona, Colorado, Nebraska and Montana, according to word received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

The quarantine regulates the movement of all hay and straw originating in areas of 11 western states in which the weevil has established itself, because it is largely through these materials that the pest is spread. States in which the alfalfa weevil has spread, causing untold damage, are Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

Young Republicans to Gather at Green Bay

The new 4-county Young Republican organization which includes Outagamie, Brown, Winnebago and Kewaunee counties will meet at Green Bay this evening. A membership drive will be planned. Young Republican representatives of Manitowish, Sheboygan and Shawano counties are expected to attend the meeting.

State to Seek Bids For Huge Cheese to Succeed 'Goliath'

The state department of agriculture will seek bids on a new giant cheese, to replace "Goliath" which was feature of National Cheese week of last year, according to word received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

The unborn cheese giant already has its life-course fairly well charted. It will be exhibited at the Wisconsin State fair, Aug. 17-25, and will be sent to the National Dairy show at Harrisburg, Pa., in October. Accompanied, it should be noted, by the young lady chosen 1940 Wisconsin dairy queen. From Harrisburg the course will lead to the New York World's fair.

Within the span of a few short months housewives from coast to coast will hear much about the good qualities of Goliath's successor and all its Wisconsin kin.

The department will leave it to the public to suggest a good name for the heir to the distinguished role played by Goliath.

Find Possible Cause For Hens' Broodiness

Since the incubator has largely replaced the setting hen, poultrymen want hens that lay regularly without periodic spells of broodiness. Scientists of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry set out to study the physiology of broodiness and find out why some hens are less broody and thereby more valuable as layers.

The scientists found, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus, that within the pituitary gland, a tiny mechanism at the base of the brain, is the possible answer to the broodiness question. They found that the pituitary glands of genetically broody hens—those that inherit their tendency to be broody—contain more of a chemical substance known as prolactin, than do the pituitaries of hens that have been bred away from broodiness.

Install Heads of Grange Chapter

South Greenville Group In Charge of Ceremony Near Oshkosh

About 25 members of South Greenville Grange went to Community Grange, west of Oshkosh, last Friday night to conduct installation of officers for the latter group. George Schaefer, master of the Greenville Grange, was installing officer, and others who assisted were Donald Menning and John Pingel, marshals; Mrs. Henry Schaefer, regalia bearer; Stanley Jamison, chaplain; Mrs. Robert Schroeder, pianist; Imogene Schaefer, Mrs. James Schaefer and Mrs. Lyle Larson, singers; Alice Jamison, Mrs. Ida Westphal, Mrs. Lester Pingel and Mrs. Charles Schroeder, tableaus.

Mrs. Frank Laudon, Greenville, was hostess to members of the Ladies Aid society of Greenville Lutheran church and their husbands at a meeting last Thursday night at her home. The women are working on articles for the bazaar to be held late in May or early in June at the same time as the annual chicken dinner. Seventeen persons were present.

The next meeting will be Feb. 8 at the home of Mrs. Harry Nieman, Dale.

The federal scientists believe that the relatively large amount of prolactin causes the broodiness. Now they are studying ways to breed hens with the non-broody characteristic.

Department Plans Drive to Increase Butter Consumption

Increasing the use of butter in the home will be the object of an intensive campaign which the state department of agriculture will launch Feb. 1 as one of its leading dairy promotion activities for 1940, County Agent J. F. Magnus has been informed.

Throughout the state, women's organizations will be invited to conduct cooking demonstrations which will prove, in the words of a nationally famous chef, that "success in cooking depends upon a greater use of butter." An invitation will be given 4-H clubs to use the plan as a major project.

New butter recipes, featuring many original ideas submitted by Chippewa county women's clubs, are being prepared for distribution, together with window and counter display materials and other literature.

For several months outdoor advertising will carry special butter messages.

Relief Case Judgment Appeal Will Be Heard

An appeal in a relief case judgment for Outagamie county against the town of Neenah, Winnebago county, will be heard in Dane county circuit court at Madison Thursday, according to George Fiedler, county relief director. The judgment is for $919.37.

Teachers Have 'Grave Problems' In Getting Funds for Pensions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Teachers in the public schools of Wisconsin "have a grave problem" in persuading the state government to meet its obligations to their retirement pension fund, the Wisconsin Education association's magazine organ asserted here today.

Writing in the teachers' magazine, Prof. Mark H. Ingraham, chairman of the University of Wisconsin retirement board, pointed out that "it is difficult to get the proper transfers from the general fund of the state and the surtaxes are not at present proving adequate."

Capitol authorities reported today that in 1939 the state owed to the teachers' pension fund a total of almost $8,000,000, the aggregate of past deficiencies unpaid, while the budget bureau estimates that the total will increase by almost $1,700,000 during the present biennium.

The teachers' fund is financed by contributions by teachers who are members, and a special income surtax levied on Wisconsin citizens.

Huge Debt Results The law is so written that when the teachers' surtax yields an insufficient amount, the deficiency becomes a claim on the state treasury, and bears interest at the rate of 3 per cent. Since 1931, according to state financial authorities, the teachers' surtax has been inadequate to meet the state's share of the payments for teachers' pensions, resulting in the huge debt on the treasury's books today.

Because of the slender financial resources of the state, and the constant efforts of the Heil administration to stretch existing revenues to meet ordinary operating expenses, it is unlikely, informed officials said, that the current biennial deficiency will be paid, with the result that next year the total obligation will have risen to more than $7,000,000. Exclusive of the state debt, the teachers' fund now has assets of slightly more than $40,000,000, according to its last financial report.

Last state treasury payment into the teachers' fund was in 1938. Later that year former Governor LaFollette attempted, through his emergency board, to pay a substantial part of the accumulated debt, plus about a million dollars of an old Civil war debt. Incoming Heil administration officials, however, asserting that LaFollette was trying to empty the state treasury on the eve of the inauguration of a political opponent, went to the supreme court to halt the payments.

THE FOOTBALL SEASON finally has come to an end and it appears that the Green Bay Packers hold the spotlight as the best that ever wore harnesses and regalia. At any rate, there appear to be no more worlds to conquer for the pros can't play the colleges and the Packers are the class of the pros.

There was no doubt about the Packers being tops last Sunday. If you scanned the game reports it made you feel the Bays were "up" almost as much as when they played the Giants in Milwaukee. There's no other way to account for the All-Stars fumbling and losing ground at crucial moments.

Or perhaps the Packers were thinking about being left off some of those all-star choices of the coaches and the sports writers. Also, it's possible that the Bays were interested in showing that all-star selections are the bunk, that it's rather hard to take a group of individual stars and make a team out of them in a few weeks. But the Packers will have to prove that by knocking off the college all-stars next summer at Chicago. The circle will be completed if the Bays really tear loose.

Members of Seymour's baseball team in the Northern State league last year will gather around tonight at Weisgerber's at Menasha and discuss the summer's outlook.

From Howard Purser's story of the Packer-All-Star game to the Green Bay Press Gazette:

"Of the 28 men who took part in the game, 26 showed a desire to win. Two didn't. It is good for us that we know who they are. They are not good enough for the Packers and will be replaced."

Lambeau then pointed out that the freshmen played a little more than 50 per cent of the game, and was high in his praise for the following:

Harry Jaenski, who played despite an ankle injury and proved "that he must be rated with the best ends in the league."

Brock and Greenfield, who "demonstrated they are our best centers."

Larry Buhler, who did some great blocking for Cecil Isbell, especially on that touchdown pass.

Tinsley and Zarnas, who delivered a smashing game at guard. In other asides Lambeau made this comment:

"Balazs was a disappointment, but he had his lesson and I think he might make it."

"Schultz was trying hard, but he won't do at tackle. He might be converted into a guard."

"The game definitely showed we are weak at right end and will have to be bolstered in that spot."

"Buhler will be shifted to a blocking position."

The Big Ten officials' code, unique in its being the only code so voluntarily drawn by officials themselves, follows:

1. — The officials will not carry gossip from one camp to another but instead will strive to improve friendly relations within the Conference.

2. — No official will discuss plays or game incidents with newspapermen, scouts or others.

3. — The officials will always conduct themselves in such a manner as to prevent in any way unwarranted criticism. For instance, it is an unwritten rule that the officials will not take a drink before a game.

4. — The officials will check each other in the case of possible misapplication of a rule and will not criticize their fellow officials, to others outside the group.

5. — The officials are older players who have been selected to help this generation of players with their games. While an official must maintain discipline on the field, he should always treat the players with the courtesy due college gentlemen.

6. — The officials will dress neatly, will report at least 15 minutes before game time on the field, will repair to their dressing room between halves and after the game will leave field as promptly as possible. In no case will the officials engage in arguments with spectators or others.

7. — When an official calls a foul and reports the same to the referee, will stand facing the direction in which the referee is to step off the penalty.

The photographic judgments which have proved of great value in the determination of horse and foot race results do not hold such great significance in reviewing the decisions of officials in team athletic contests, an editorial in the January issue of the Athletic Journal points out.

The editorial cites the use of the camera in deciding 545 horse races on New York tracks during the last season, and its use at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Track and Field championships when each year reversals of finish decisions occur upon the development of finish pictures.

At the same time, race finish judges are called upon to make no more than five selections at the most under set circumstances, greatly contrasted to team sport officials, such as in football. According to the editorial, football officials are called upon for approximately 500 decisions during an average college game and in a great variety of circumstances and unanticipated developments.

The fact that an average of five to seven mistakes do occur in the average football game does not detract from the efficiency of the officials in any way, the editorial says, as the element of human error always must occur to a large degree as noted in the use of the camera in race decisions.

Photographic reviews of football officials' errors only emphasize the human error, according to the editorial, and are no necessary indictment of the officials who actually approach a high degree of perfection in their honesty and courage.

Baseball Clubs Given Chance to Sponsor Grid Teams

San Diego, Calif. —(U)— Pacific coast baseball league owners were handed a proposition today to sponsor a professional football league.

Harry Myers of Los Angeles, long identified with pro football, broached the idea at the league's meeting.

"The plan to form a Pacific coast pro football league is well under way now, but we thought the best idea would be to see if the baseball clubs would be interested in the matter," Myers said.

"The clubs have a natural set up for the football league. They have the organizations to carry on such a league. They own the parks and all they need is a team and a coach."

"The league will be started next fall, whether the baseball men go into it or not, but I think they are the logical ones to form such a league."

Jays Scrimmage In Preparation For Neenah Game

Reserve Seats Go on Sale For Twin City Tilt Friday Night

MENASHA — Scrimmage sessions were ordered this week by Coach Leslie Anson for the Bluejays cagers prepared for the Northeastern Wisconsin conference title with Neenah Friday night. Tuesday afternoon the Bluejays scrimmaged against the Menasha Merchants, a team of former St. Mary's High school players, while this evening they will scrimmage the Hub Hucks, a team of former Menasha High school players.

Both teams are rangy and offer the small Bluejays plenty of competition against the height that Neenah will throw against them Friday night. There is no need for Coach Anson to key his players for the game. The Bluejay squad is determined to hand the Red Rockets their first defeat.

Reserve seat tickets have been placed on sale in both Neenah and Menasha. In Neenah they may be secured at Draheims and Economy Drug while in Menasha they are available at Schultzes, Sonnenbergs and Slup and Hedbergs. Reserved seats are 50 cents while general admission will be 35 cents and student tickets 25 cents.

Doors will open at the Menasha gymnasium at 6 o'clock Friday night. The preliminary game will start at 7 o'clock and the varsity contest will follow at 8 o'clock. A. C. Denney and Ray Montieth, both of Appleton, will be the officials.

Jays Are Shifted
In drills the fore part of this week Coach Anson has shifted his squad in an effort to find the most effective combination. Chances are that the starters will be Richard and Fred Landskron at forwards, Ray Wippich at center, and Gus Block and Wilbur Merkley at guards.

That group includes the best ball handlers as well as the fastest men. It sacrifices something in height and weight but Wippich and Fred Landskron should be able to take care of rebounds.

Coach Anson probably will use all of his squad in various stages of the game. Playing at top speed the entire game, the Jays will need rest. The squad will be in somewhat better shape than it was for the first Neenah game as Henry Ogiewalski no longer has a cast on his hand. Henry Spice also has recovered from a wrist injury.

Blazers are being erected on the main floor of the gymnasium and a capacity crowd is expected. Sale of tickets already is rapid.

Helen Stephens Tells of Olympic Experiences Between Halves

KIMBERLY — A large crowd saw the Kimberly A. A. cagers defeat Helen Stephens Coeds at the clubhouse last night by a score of 39 to 21. During the half intermission, Miss Stephens gave an exhibition of the 100-yard dash and recited some of her experiences in the 1936 Olympics. She stated she had met Hitler and spoken with him.

Miss Stephens has lost only one race during her lifetime. She holds the women's record in shot put of 41 feet, 11 1/2 inches. She also won the standing broad jump with 8 feet, 4 1/2 inches and has traveled with the House of David baseball team.

The crowd had barrels of fun watching the game, especially Miss Payne, who guarded Buck LeMay. She called him "Shorty" and showed him all the "profes" tricks of basketball. Buck came out for the second half with a cut on his right arm in a sling and his head bandaged but it was all in fun.

Norb. Gossens started the ball rolling by fouling Scheibbaum, who made one out of two tries. Payne knocked E. Vander Velden down and he made good on his charity. The crowd sensed the fun with the Papermakers laughing themselves sick. Payne made a long shot but Hofkins countered with one of his own.

Scheibbaum scored a rebound and on the next play, Stephens gave Vander Velden a gift. Payne got a half nelson on Buck and a foul was called on her. Buck blushed so much that he missed the free throw. Hofkins got a basket while Vander Velden sank a gift just before the quarter time with the home boys in the lead, 9 to 5.

At half time the score was 29 to 11 with the Papermakers passing the ball around. The visitors played good ball with Conson being the star with six buckets good for twelve points. The second half was all fun with LeMay trying to stay clear of Payne, but somehow or other she fancied Buck.

The little Indian girl, Miss Conson, had a good eye for the hoop and connected with a neat shot to open the third quarter. She made three buckets in this quarter to bring her total to 17 points while the Papermakers showed 25.

In the last frame the boys were practicing long shots and at the end of the game had an advantage of 39 to 21.

The A. A. Reserves lost to a Neenah team 20 to 20. The Papermakers were behind at the half 8 to 14.

Track's Man Of The Decade Owens

BY DILLON GRAHAM NEW YORK —(4)— Jess Owens, the slender, tan-colored negro speedster, wins our nomination as track's Man of the Decade in one of those photo-finishes over the sturdy, untiring runner of the Kansas plains, Glenn Cunningham.

Owens was like a blazing comet that burst suddenly across the skies and then fell from view. Cunningham was with us throughout the decade, a consistently great performer who ran his fastest race late in the Thirties.

While the Kansan's feats were limited to middle distance footracing, the Ohio State university ace shone as a sprinter, hurdler and broad jumper. Owens' margin was increased, too, by Olympic triumphs, something denied Cunningham although Glenn broke a world record in 1936 as runner-up in the 1,500 meters.

Owens' chief claim to fame rest with his 1935 Big Ten championship performances and his 1936 Olympics triumphs.

No Respect For Records On a May afternoon at Ann Arbor, Mich., the Ohio State flash broke three world records and equalled another.

A year later he was the brightest performer in an Olympiad replete with stars. The first athlete in a dozen years to score a triple, Jesse romped off with the 100 and 200-meter sprints, won the broad jump, and ran on the record-breaking 400-meter relay quartet.

Shortly afterwards his short and brilliant amateur career ended when he was suspended by the A. U. But now, four years later, Owens still holds seven world records. These are for 100 and 220 yards, 100 and 200 meters, 220 yard and 200 meter hurdles and the broad jump.

Cunningham's marks show him as the most consistent miler of all time. The "iron horse" has run almost as many miles under 4:10 as all his competitors combined.

At times during the Thirties Cunningham was conceded to be the world's best, indoors and outdoors, at either the miles or its metric equivalent, 1,500 meters. He was the favorite in almost any race he entered from 800 to 1,500 meters.

Until Sydney Wooderson's 4:06.4

held all important records from one to seven miles. He scored two Olympic triumphs in 1920, rang up four victories in 1924 and then came back in 1928 to gain another. Nurmi revolutionized theories of pacing and training. He often carried a stop watch and ran his race to the split second as he had laid it out. He came to this country in 1925 and cracked 28 world records in his first 22 races. He probably rates as the No. 1 trackster of all-time.

Owens, as track's top figure of the Thirties, doesn't measure up to Finland's Paavo Nurmi, the runner who dominated the Twenties.

Landis Promises Fines and Banishment Next Time the Majors Kick Over the Traces

BY TOM SILER CHICAGO —(4)—Spry, old Kenesaw Mountain Landis still is making spectacular rulings, just as he did 35 years ago when he sat on the federal bench.

Back in 1907 he slapped a broad-taking $29,240,000 fine on the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and this week he shook the baseball world with a ruling that cost Detroit's American league club an estimated half million dollars.

The 71-year-old baseball commissioner made himself the ball player's friend more than ever when he cut loose 91 players owned by Detroit and affiliated minor league clubs Sunday in the most striking blow at "chain-store" operations in the history of the game.

He warned club owners and executives that infractions of the rules governing player transactions in the future would lead to heavy fines and banishment from the game of officials responsible.

Landis explained in a supplementary statement yesterday that illegal practices in operations of farms hurt the players.

"The purpose and effect of the farm system," he asserted, "and of working agreements" misused to accomplish the same results without the responsibilities of minor club ownership, is to cold storage ball players until the major club controlling them sees fit to use them or sell their contracts.

"Instead of being free to advance, as rapidly as their ability merits, and to advance to and through any and every club in baseball, players are unjustly restricted to grooved advancement through to one system which controls them and solely as that system may conceive to be in its interests.

"To this there is but one exception—the remote possibility that a player may be drafted."

Landis said the only reason the penalty wasn't more severe in Detroit's case was that club owners and officials had not been given sufficient warning of the seriousness of the evils.

He gave them fair warning in his statement yesterday.

Threatens Suspension In the future, Landis declared, every secret player transfer or other player "cover up" effected, will lead to making the player a free agent, fining each club concerned $500, and suspension from baseball of each club official or employee participating.

The commissioner added that in every case of certificate of club relations, affiliations and connections hereafter filed, which is found to misrepresent or untruthfully report any material fact, the club would be fined $1,000 and the official executing such certificate would be suspended.

Walter O. Briggs, Detroit club owner, indicated the Tigers would make no protest against Landis' crushing blow at their farm system.

Speaking from his winter home in Miami, Beach, Fla., Briggs said: "We have surely been fully penalized for any mistakes and wrongdoings within the organization. The cost of this is none and will be properly taken care of."

"This decision will affect our minor league operations but I do not think it will handicap the Detroit Tigers this season. We are always in the market for seasoned ball players and we are willing to pay the best price for them."

George Halas' Cagers at Oshkosh Saturday Evening

SHKOSH—The next home appearance of the Oshkosh All Stars will be made Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock with the Chicago Bruins as the opponent. It will be the first visit for the Windy City aggregation managed by George Halas, who is known in Wisconsin as the fiery pilot of the Bears, long the rivals of the Green Bay Packers in the National Football league.

The Bruins are newcomers to the National Basketball league this season, having taken over the franchise of last year's Pittsburgh Pirates. They began their schedule with four wins in a row and until a week ago were in first place in the Western division, but lost the top spot to the Sheboygan Redskins. Oshkosh's determined drive which has netted six straight league wins has boosted it into second place so that the Bruins now find themselves in third, but hot on the trail of the two Wisconsin members.

The Chicago team is built around big Mike Novak, 6 foot 8 inch center, and Wibs Kautz, who were teammates last season at Loyola of Chicago. Kautz was one of the country's highest collegiate scorers. Novak will oppose LeRoy "Lefty" Edwards, Oshkosh's high-scoring center, who last Saturday against the Detroit Eagles, leaders of the Eastern division, made 24 points. Edwards now has an average of 11.6 points for 13 league games, having scored 106 points in his last six contests.

Playoffs at the end of this season will pit the first and second teams in a best two-out-of-three game series, the winner to meet the Eastern division winner for the league title. Oshkosh and Chicago will be battling for one of those one-two spots in the West, with Sheboygan expected to hold the other and as a result each time the All Stars and Bruins meet from here on a battle is anticipated.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Sagging breasts and low bosoms are the antithesis of everything cuter and beauty specialists have been decrying for the woman of tomorrow. This unlovely line is the result of faulty posture and improper carriage.

If your breasts sag, and if you are under forty years of age, there is hope that you may beautify your figure line through a program of reconditioning exercises. Exercises by which the shoulder girdle lifts the chest, pulling up and strengthening the pectoral muscles. Such exercises are necessarily less strenuous than other corrective exercises due to the delicacy of the pectoral muscles and tissues which hold the breasts in position.

Correct Posture First
My leaflet "How to Keep Young Looking" illustrates good posture, which is necessary to a pretty figure and good health. It also illustrates two very good exercises which help to strengthen the muscles of the midriff and the spine to enable you to stand gracefully erect. It is free upon request. Write for it care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover postage charge. You should practice good posture before you practice the following bust lifting exercises.

Again I present Nelli Bukli's splendid exercises the famous Denmark gymnast who has made good figures and good health a life long story.

Exercise 1—Stand with feet six inches apart and raise arms in horizontal plane, elbows completely flexed at shoulder height with wrists straight free of tension. Stretch arms downward and backward. Return to position.

Then raise arms overhead and reach as high as possible without raising your feet from the ground. Drop arms to sides and repeat entire routine twice.

Exercise 2—With arms at your sides, as starting position, fling them vigorously over your head, dropping the trunk slightly as the arms are lowered. Your head should follow the movement of the arms.

Exercise 3—Now curve the arms in a ring over your head, fingers extended and tips touching (as illustrated). From this position bend the trunk backward, pushing the arms to sides and repeat three times.

Exercise 4—Cross arms low in front and then fling them upward diagonally, then slowly bring them to a crossed position in back and fling them upward and forward. Continue this exercise for five minutes—after you have gone through the routine given above.

My Neighbor Says—

Hotbeds are coldfrants with heat added. This may be from animal manure, hot water or electricity. The difference between the two is the presence of the heating unit.

To clean gas stove burners boil them in a strong solution of washing soda and water for about half an hour. This will remove all the grease. Rinse thoroughly, dry and put back into the stove.

Fails to Get Meaning of Signal Cards

BY ELY CULBERTSON

An expert coupled to a pitifully weak partner on the defense of a hand resembles nothing so much as Don Quixote tilting at windmills. With every legitimate device at his command he tries to lead partner along the proper line of defense, but his signal cards, which should be all-revealing, are either overlooked or completely disregarded.

In today's hand a vulnerable slam was stolen from under the defender's noses despite the proper discarding instructions signaled by the expert.

South, dealer.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 spades Pass 2 spades 3 clubs
6 spades Pass Pass Pass

South's slam bid was due, in some measure, to his misunderstanding of North's bid. On the 80 part-score he took the two spade bid to be a slam-trick, whereas actually North had merely attempted a mild preempt against East, the next bidder. Incidentally it is well to point out that North was right and South was wrong. Had North intended to give a slam-trick there were many other bids at his command better than a single raise.

West opened the seven of clubs. East won the ace and made the safe return of a new club. If declarer's king still were guarded, West would be out and would ruff. Declarer won with the king and saw that nothing but a slip by the defenders could keep him from losing a heart trick, so he set out to make such an error as persuasive as possible.

He led the queen of spades, overtook with dummy's king, and ruffed the jack of clubs with the spade ace. On this trick West discarded a diamond. Three more rounds of trumpets followed. West followed to the first round, but despite the all-important fact that East signaled a low diamond and a high heart West continued to discard diamonds on the last two rounds. With one trump left in dummy and none in his own hand, declarer now simply cashed the ace of hearts and returned to his hand with a diamond, to run the entire suit, including the established deuce, throwing off all of dummy's losing hearts. Dummy's trump accounted for the twelfth and contract fulfilling trick.

MAN AND A MAID

Dear Mrs. Post: How can a young man meet a young woman properly, if there is absolutely no one to introduce them? Every young people see each other these days, but only in passing in the street outside of the office building in which both work, and sometimes in riding up and down on the elevators.

Answer: He might perhaps smile a little as he takes off his hat in the elevator. While it is not necessary that a man take off his hat in an office or other public building, it is always a polite and proper gesture. Perhaps this alone may induce her to say "Good morning" to him. He can also hurry ahead and hold the door of the office building open for her. She would have to say "Thank you" for that, he might—some day—say "Good morning" to her. And she return his greeting at least, with a smile thrown in! But if all these attempts on his part fail, and she neither smiles nor speaks nor even looks in his direction, then he can only take it for granted that the young woman does not care to know him. And that would be the end of that!

A QUESTION ABOUT A NICKNAME

Dear Mrs. Post: My niece does not like her name. She insists upon calling herself Betty Smith instead of using her real name, which is Mary Elizabeth Smith. This hasn't mattered very much up to now, but her wedding invitations and announcements have to be engraved very soon, and we are having quite a time about the proper name to be used on them. Betty is absolutely cold at the suggestion of Mary Elizabeth, and she says this is her wedding and she should be allowed to have the

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

The mind always exerts a powerful influence upon our bodily health. Many organic ailments, such as that which troubles Anne in today's case, can be improved or cured by changing the patient's mental attitude. Indeed, it has been estimated that as high as 50 per cent of a physician's clientele is composed of mental cases, like Anne.

CASE P-157: Anne F., aged 24, is an attractive school teacher.

"Two years ago I was secretly married," she confessed.

"Since we couldn't live together because my husband's position and mine would not permit us to do so, I had to continue posing as a single woman."

"But I seemed to grow more nervous and irritable as time passed. My temper got out of control, and of their ulcer symptoms, even when the old ulcer had been excised.

The basic cause of the ulcer, therefore, had not been removed. Nervous tension not only keeps the muscles tense, because they are bombarded with frequent impulses ordering their increased tone, but this same general nervous tension leads to a bombardment of glands with orders to secrete.

In psychology, we talk about "motor" impulses, meaning those which go from the brain to muscles or glands. The same type of motor impulse which will make a muscle flex, will cause a gland to secrete.

Nervous people, therefore, tend to have hyperacidity of the stomach from this excessive secretion of gastric juice. One of the essential cures of peptic ulcer is a reduction of the nervous excitability of the patient.

Psychology Can Cure Ulcers
An employee who is in terror of a sharp-tongued, tactless boss may suffer from stomach ulcers. A business man unduly worried over possible bankruptcy, may also develop peptic ulcer.

People who are afraid of death, or who are stimulated but unsatisfied in marriage, may likewise show this medical ailment, as was true of Anne. Nerving women often belong in this category.

Irritable, nagging wives are usually sexually unsatisfied wives. This is almost an axiom of psychology, because it is so universally true.

The average married couple receive little scientific advice regarding successful marriage relations. Even our public libraries are often so prudish they will not stock books on the subject, and many of those which are written, even by M. D.'s, contain gross misstatements of fact reminiscent of Tennyson's era.

The art of marriage, like the art of playing a piano, demands diligent attention to rules and scientific principles. A novice cannot bring harmony and melody from a piano despite his most ardent pounding.

Neither should a young married couple stumble along blindly hoping for marital adjustment. If you haven't the essential facts for marital happiness, send a long, self-addressed and stamped envelope with a dime for printing costs and get my bulletin on "SEX PROBLEMS IN MARRIAGE."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime for printing costs and a dime for cover, postage or printing costs when you ask personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Woman Who Has Gas Range and Cook Book Can Earn a Living

BY DOROTHY DIX

Every woman who is married to a man whose earnings do not permit him to establish any security for his family lives with the cold fear gnawing at her heart of what would happen to her and the children if he should die.

In her imagination she sees herself, as she has seen so many other widows, helpless in the face of the catastrophe that has befallen her with no education, no trade, no profession, no talent by which she could support herself and those dependent upon her, and their slowly eating up the little insurance money that was left after the funeral expenses were paid.

And after that, what? The tragedy of breaking up her home. The horror of dependence. The humiliation of accepting grudging charity and being "poor Mary" by her family. The agony of seeing her children hungry and ragged and slipping deeper and deeper, day by day, into the abyss of poverty. She has known so many weeping women like that, desperate women who did not know which way to turn to make a dollar. They had gone from the school room to the kitchen and then to the street, and they had not found it there to compete in the business world with alert young girls with their specialized trainings.

Their old fingers were too stiff to gain speed on a typewriter. Their old brains that had thought of nothing for years and years but baby formulas and making over the Sunday pot roast for Monday's dinner were not quick and accurate enough to meet the demands of the modern office. They were not pretty enough to be an attraction behind a counter. And so they faced the bitter truth that there is no one in all God's world so helpless as the middle-aged domestic woman who is suddenly thrown on her own resources.

Now inasmuch as so many women face this dreadful fate that they fear so much, and inasmuch as it is impossible for them to leave their husbands and children and homes to study some gainful occupation and perfect themselves in it, it has name she prefers. We'd like to give in to her for this reason, but we don't want ourselves criticized either.

Answer: I think such names as Sally, Katie, Dottie, Sis, Cissie, Judy, etc., look just about as out of place on an engraved page as tennis shoes worn with an evening dress. A nickname is personal and intimate—a name engraved is the essence of formality. I can even go so far as to say that I know of two young women who were christened one Betty and the other Minnie. The one whose only real name was Betty had her wedding invitations engraved Elizabeth. The one whose name was Minnie used Mary. On the other hand, this question is, I agree, entirely one of form. Apart from the impropriety of an informal name presented formally, there is nothing against it. In other words, since you ask me what is correct, I have to answer "Mary Elizabeth." If you ask me whether Betty may or may not choose "Betty," my answer is that I should be inclined to leave it to Betty!

Also, if a woman in her personality is noted for being a marvelous housekeeper and serving diners that should be eaten on one's knees, she does not have to look for a job when evil days come to her. ## One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

YESTERDAY: Sue learns that Bob Trenton is president of the new shoe factory. He begins a whirlwind wooing of Sue.

Chapter Five
"I Love You"
"You think Bob is just amusing himself with me?" she asked Forest.

"What else? You're tops here all right, Sue darlin', but still and all St. Joseph isn't exactly metropolitan, you have to admit. It's my guess Trenton picks the village belle wherever his business takes him; and has himself a hefty good time—while it lasts. You said he was only giving you a rush!"

The black curls bobbed assentingly against his shoulder, but her eyes flung a welcome to the tall young man who was skating across the floor toward her. She smiled mockingly at Forest's disgruntlement as he surrendered her to the newcomer.

"Cheer up!" she called as Trenton swept her away. "Remember the Chamber of Commerce!"

"What about the Chamber of Commerce?" Bob demanded. "No, you don't. Kettle! I just now took her away from Webb. Go on, Sue, tell me! Can't you and Forest find any more interesting things to talk about than business?"

"You," she told him.

"Me? Oh, I see! His agile mind made the connection at once. 'The branch factory, eh? And Webb's father a director of the Chamber of Commerce. Plain as a pikestaff. Well, he dismissed the subject comfortably. The factory's going through all right. They can stop worrying about it.' He evaded an approaching stag skillfully. Like this town, Sue! Shall we live here—for a time at least?"

"I shall," she said, emphasizing the pronoun significantly. "You must do as you think best, of course."

He sighed with exaggerated relief. "That's settled then! I'll close the deal tomorrow."

"What deal? The factory?"

"No, the house. A darned nice house it is, too, let me tell you! Swimming pool, landscaped grounds, everything. The poor chap that built it died in an airplane smash last winter."

"Oh, you mean the Wilmington place out beyond the Country Club? It is a nice place, Bob. But a trifle large for a bachelor?"

"Nonsense!"

"Bachelor, my Aunt Emma! Seriously, Sue, I think it's high time you were setting the date. We've known each other ages and ages—"

"Three long weeks, in fact," she said dryly.

"Three weeks, or three years—what does it matter? I love you and you love me—"

"Don't I?"

"But I love me? Nonsense!" He stopped abruptly, opened a door and propelled her through it with a gentle hand on her shoulder. "I came early and scouted around to find this. Inhabitable soul, or hostess; not a light on." He passed a button and Sue discovered they were in a small, book-lined room, clearly not intended to be used to-night. Somebody's reading glasses were on the desk, there was a comfortable litter of magazines and papers on the narrow table.

"Bob, we have no business in here!"

"Your mistake, sweet! We have very important business, if you ask me. Here—tuck your little self on this couch while I turn off the high light and switch on this nice low lamp. If I move this high-backed chair—so between us and the door, we're fairly safe from discovery."

In spite of herself her heart beats quickened a little.

"It's too early in the evening for us to disappear like this," she experience, plus an expert knowledge of how to plan and superintend the preparation of good food, to fill paying positions in hotels and clubs and schools. So I urge every woman to make a profession out of housekeeping. It is the best security she can take out.

Children Suffer Innocently Through Divorce

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 13. My parents are divorced and I live with my father and his wife. Every Sunday I go to see my mother. Mother spends her time criticizing my father and when I come home Daddy talks against Mother. What can I say to them to make them understand how it hurts me for them to abuse each other?

MARY LEE.

Answer:

Tell your mother that you love her, but that you love your father also and that it breaks your heart to have her say unkind things about him. And tell your father the same thing. Tell them both that it is hard enough on a child to be deprived of its natural right to a peaceful home, with both a mother and father in it, without her being torn to pieces between them. It is jealousy that makes them do it.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For nearly 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritated oil ducts, when many surface pimples start, and aids healing. Carefully cleansing the skin with Resinol Soap helps to quicken the pleasing results. Its gently active lather is refreshing and it rinses easily.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from your druggist. For free sample, write Resinol, Dept. 89, Baltimore, Md.

protested. "Ever so many people will be looking for us both. Let's go back, Bob!"

"No," he spoke with finality. "We have things to talk about—important matters to decide. When will you marry me, Sue?"

She colored, more with annoyance than embarrassment.

"I won't! I don't love you, Bob. I just finished telling you so."

"I didn't hear you. I'll never hear you—when you talk nonsense like that. Of course you love me! How could you help it when I'm so utterly mad about you?"

She clasped her hands about her knees, rocking herself sideways to look at him through mischievously lowered lashes.

"You say that with suspicious glances, my man! With practiced ease, in fact. 'Utterly mad' about me, ha! You talk like a man in a smart play."

Something Like Real
His pleasant face grew a little hard. "I can do more than talk, Sue! Don't tempt me too far. I'm putting a lot of restraint on myself as it is!"

She had a moment of something like fear. The men she knew, the men she had grown up among, did not talk like this, look like this. She contrasted Forest Webb's cheerful wooing, Jim Kettle's dignified attentions, with this reckless young man's manner, and wished she were back among the dancers. But it would never do to let him see she was impressed! Forest's remark about the village belle and crown prince stuff still rankled. If Bob Trenton thought he could breeze into town with his stunning looking clothes, and his stunning looking car, and his carloads of flowers sent to any girl who momentarily attracted him, he was due for a jolt that was all. She held her head a little higher, and advised him lightly: "Keep on restraining yourself, my dear boy! It's good for you."

"Sue, please! We're wasting time. I know what you're thinking just as well as if you said it, and it's not, sheer rot! Some of Webb's provincialism. I'd be willing to bet. I lost my heart to you the first time I saw you: that day on the river bluff, with the sunset behind you, and the darling little scowl on your darling little queer face. I knew then that I was going to marry you! It wouldn't have mattered if you'd been Mrs. Somebody-or-other even then. I always get what I want—always! And I want you more than anything in the whole world. I'll get you, sweet! Make no mistake about that. Of course you can make difficulties, tantalize me with a cat-and-mouse sort of game—"

"Bob, you're so conceited!" The accusation burst from her youthfully. "You talk as if any girl would give her eye teeth to get you. You talk as if I were already in love with you! Well, I'm not! It wouldn't amuse me in the slightest to 'make difficulties,' as you call it. I like my life as it is. I don't want to get married for a long, long time; and even if I did, it wouldn't be you."

SLIM LINES

BY ANNE ADAMS

There's not-to-be-equalled, casual RIGHTNESS about a shirtwaister style that will carry you smartly through a busy day of shopping, calling for the children, visiting a friend and working. Anne Adams' Pattern 4305, a trim matron's shirtwaister, is quick as a flash to stitch up.

See what tall-and-slim lines the front and back panels give. Neat darts at your waistline and more at your shoulders release plenty of soft freedom through the bodice. Don't you like the unusual shape of the wide collar? Trim it with ruffling or rick-rack, if you like, and you might also have it in contrast, with cuffs to match.

Pattern 4305 is available in women's sizes 31, 33, 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 45, 47, 49, 51, 53, 55, 57, 59, 61, 63, 65, 67, 69, 71, 73, 75, 77, 79, 81, 83, 85, 87, 89, 91, 93, 95, 97, 99, 101, 103, 105, 107, 109, 111, 113, 115, 117, 119, 121, 123, 125, 127, 129, 131, 133, 135, 137, 139, 141, 143, 145, 147, 149, 151, 153, 155, 157, 159, 161, 163, 165, 167, 169, 171, 173, 175, 177, 179, 181, 183, 185, 187, 189, 191, 193, 195, 197, 199, 201, 203, 205, 207, 209, 211, 213, 215, 217, 219, 221, 223, 225, 227, 229, 231, 233, 235, 237, 239, 241, 243, 245, 247, 249, 251, 253, 255, 257, 259, 261, 263, 265, 267, 269, 271, 273, 275, 277, 279, 281, 283, 285, 287, 289, 291, 293, 295, 297, 299, 301, 303, 305, 307, 309, 311, 313, 315, 317, 319, 321, 323, 325, 327, 329, 331, 333, 335, 337, 339, 341, 343, 345, 347, 349, 351, 353, 355, 357, 359, 361, 363, 365, 367, 369, 371, 373, 375, 377, 379, 381, 383, 385, 387, 389, 391, 393, 395, 397, 399, 401, 403, 405, 407, 409, 411, 413, 415, 417, 419, 421, 423, 425, 427, 429, 431, 433, 435, 437, 439, 441, 443, 445, 447, 449, 451, 453, 455, 457, 459, 461, 463, 465, 467, 469, 471, 473, 475, 477, 479, 481, 483, 485, 487, 489, 491, 493, 495, 497, 499, 501, 503, 505, 507, 509, 511, 513, 515, 517, 519, 521, 523, 525, 527, 529, 531, 533, 535, 537, 539, 541, 543, 545, 547, 549, 551, 553, 555, 557, 559, 561, 563, 565, 567, 569, 571, 573, 575, 577, 579, 581, 583, 585, 587, 589, 591, 593, 595, 597, 599, 601, 603, 605, 607, 609, 611, 613, 615, 617, 619, 621, 623, 625, 627, 629, 631, 633, 635, 637, 639, 641, 643, 645, 647, 649, 651, 653, 655, 657, 659, 661, 663, 665, 667, 669, 671, 673, 675, 677, 679, 681, 683, 685, 687, 689, 691, 693, 695, 697, 699, 701, 703, 705, 707, 709, 711, 713, 715, 717, 719, 721, 723, 725, 727, 729, 731, 733, 735, 737, 739, 741, 743, 745, 747, 749, 751, 753, 755, 757, 759, 761, 763, 765, 767, 769, 771, 773, 775, 777, 779, 781, 783, 785, 787, 789, 791, 793, 795, 797, 799, 801, 803, 805, 807, 809, 811, 813, 815, 817, 819, 821, 823, 825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835, 837, 839, 841, 843, 845, 847, 849, 851, 853, 855, 857, 859, 861, 863, 865, 867, 869, 871, 873, 875, 877, 879, 881, 883, 885, 887, 889, 891, 893, 895, 897, 899, 901, 903, 905, 907, 909, 911, 913, 915, 917, 919, 921, 923, 925, 927, 929, 931, 933, 935, 937, 939, 941, 943, 945, 947, 949, 951, 953, 955, 957, 959, 961, 963, 965, 967, 969, 971, 973, 975, 977, 979, 981, 983, 985, 987, 989, 991, 993, 995, 997, 999, 1001, 1003, 1005, 1007, 1009, 1011, 1013, 1015, 1017, 1019, 1021, 1023, 1025, 1027, 1029, 1031, 1033, 1035, 1037, 1039, 1041, 1043, 1045, 1047, 1049, 1051, 1053, 1055, 1057, 1059, 1061, 1063, 1065, 1067, 1069, 1071, 1073, 1075, 1077, 1079, 1081, 1083, 1085, 1087,

A SHORT HISTORY OF RUSSIA VII—Russian Pioneers Pushed Eastward Into Siberia

Four centuries ago, Russia began to push out of Europe into central and northern Asia. This was the movement which gave her Siberia.

Czar Nicholas II

The start was made with a little army of a few hundred men. Though small, this army was strong. The soldiers were armed with firearms, and the blazing weapons struck terror into the hearts of the Tartars and others whom they found in Asia.

The capital city of a certain prince was known as Sibir. This city was captured, and its name led the Russians to call a vast region in northern Asia "Siberia."

Soldiers led the way eastward through Siberia, but Russian control was made firm by new settlers. Russian pioneers took their families eastward, in much the same way as pioneers on this continent kept moving westward in early days. At last some of the Russians reached the Pacific, and villages were started on the coast. Some of the villages grew into cities.

Thanks to the work of a Russian explorer and settler, Russia obtained a part of North America. Known as Alaska, this Russian territory was sold to the United States in the year 1867. The price was $7,200,000. Some persons of that period said Alaska was not worth so much, but today people feel it was bought at a bargain price.

Some parts of Siberia are extremely cold, and most Russians did not care to go to a Russian land to live. The emperors of Russia brought about the settling of these places, to a certain extent, by ordering prisoners to be "sent to Siberia." In this way they felt they were doing two good things—getting rid of people who made trouble for them, and bringing about better settlement of Siberia.

For the people who were sent to a frozen land, life proved hard indeed. Some of them waited for a time, then made their escape. Often they went to foreign lands and started life over again.

The last czar of Russia was Nicholas II. He ruled from 1894 until 1917.

While Nicholas was on the throne, a war was fought between Russia and Japan. In this war, the main battles were won by the Japanese. When peace was made, Russia lost part of her power in Asia.
